

Fire, Police Bargaining Agents Okayed

By SHANE CROSBY

Kingston Common Council met last night for its October session and gave recognition to city fire fighters, and police bargaining agents. A provision was added to the measure that keeps the respective governing boards from having the final say on pay increases and employment of personnel.

Ruling Follows Recess

Local 461, Uniformed Fire Fighters' Association of the AFL-CIO, and the Kingston Patrolmen's Association were named as the agents. The only question posed during the voting was by Alderman John Machione, (R-12th) who asked that his yes vote be recorded on the provision that the "no fix" clause could hold up under a law test.

The ruling followed a one hour recess. A 10-minute recess was given later in the evening when the auditing committee asked to be allowed to go over bills at that time before the body acted upon them.

The only bill not accepted out of a General Bill sheet of $7,065.35 was one to a Kingston service station that amounted to $40.10. That bill was held over for what Auditing Committeeman Peter Fisher (R-10th) called "opportunity to give it further scrutiny." The committee questioned the need to resort to outside stations when like stations are maintained by the city.

Other Actions

Other actions that were considered at the two-hour session included the approval of revenue anticipation notes in the amount of $350,000 to carry the city over for the rest of the year.

The notes, to be sold at not more than five per cent interest, were called "normal procedure" by the Finance Ways and Means Committee. They are based on the anticipated income from 1968 tax bills yet to be paid.

Permission was given for the city to seek state and possibly federal assistance in the construction of a secondary sewage treatment plant for the city. The application is to be made under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Parking Action

Alternate side of the street parking was approved for Delaware Avenue, from Broadway to Hasbrouck Avenue; and on Fair Street from St. James Street to Henry Street. The council also voted a 30-day trial for two-hour parking limits on Jansen Avenue, between Prince and O'Reilly Streets between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. Monday through Friday.

The members also passed a measure to place a stop sign at the intersection of Tremper Avenue and Cornell Street.

The council heard a proposal by Florence Shea Ludlow (D-First) calling for a 50 per cent cut in the city sales tax. The tax measure was enacted in December of last year and placed in effect this past March. She called for the 50 per cent cut in answer to rising state and federal taxes.

Mrs. Ludlow also called for increased lighting along a stretch of Broadway around Henry Street and the Arterial Highway "of sufficient intensity for modern traffic."

Alderman Joseph Epstein thanked the council for the two-day postponement of the meeting in honor of the Jewish Holy Days.

Asks Action on Trees

As motions for adjournment were being asked for, Machione brought up the issue of Dutch Elm blight. He cited cases of dead trees in the city and called for the city to "get action fast" on the problem. He was supported by Alderman William Davis (D-Lib-13th) who noted some 600 dead or diseased trees in the city, according to a survey from Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan.

Davis had commented earlier in the evening that his car was almost hit by a falling tree. The tree had been the victim of a sudden rainstorm.

Epstein had planned to present his opinions on the new city hall issue, but postponed the talk for what he called "new information" that he wanted to go over before bringing the issue up before the Council.

PRICE TEN CENTS

Landmark Damaged In Fire

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The alert action of a tenant in the Southside Hotel at East Bridge Street on the Esopus Creek waterfront saved the lives of two other tenants and averted total destruction of the Saugerties landmark when fire broke out early today in the basement area of the century-old establishment.

All units of Saugerties Fire Department responded and according to the owner of the building, John Freiligh, the volunteers did "an amazing job to contain the blaze in the basement with a minimum of loss."

The fire was discovered by Lyman Waters, a tenant, who smelled smoke and aroused the other two tenants, Leonard Freiligh and Roy Abel, who escaped uninjured.

Saugerties Fire Commissioner Donald McCaig said there was considerable damage in the cellar and to the floor under the bar and kitchen areas. There was considerable smoke damage, but water damage was kept to a minimum. He said the fire apparently started in the electric wiring in the basement area and the fire moved up into the partitions.

Freiligh said he had purchased the hotel Aug. 6 from Christy Hubert, who had operated the business since 1900. He said he had received his liquor license three weeks ago and had just completed extensive alterations costing about $4,000. Freiligh said the renovations were planned to retain the historic characteristics of the structure. The owner said that it may be necessary to close the business for a few days but expects to reopen as soon as electricity is restored.

He noted that the hotel is a sturdy old structure with double layers of brick and three stories high.

Hard Fighting Near Border; 24 Air Deaths

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces killed 150 enemy troops in a new outbreak of heavy fighting near the Cambodian border, along the jungled approaches to Saigon, military spokesmen reported today.

Enemy gunners shot down a U.S. helicopter ferrying ammunition to the embattled South Vietnamese mercenaries in the area. Four Americans were killed and two wounded.

No Survivors

Earlier, U.S. headquarters reported that 24 Americans were killed in the collision of a big Army CH47 Chinook helicopter and an Air Force Caribou cargo plane 11 miles northwest of Hue on the coast. It was one of the worst air collisions of the war. There were no survivors.

The fighting along the Cambodian border, 60 miles northwest of Saigon was triggered at daybreak Thursday when about 400 South Vietnamese civilian irregulars were lifted into the area by American helicopters. They immediately ran into an enemy force of about 800 to 1,000 men. Two and a half hours later, another 400 South Vietnamese mercenaries were committed to the fight.

Government casualties were put at 15 dead and 44 wounded. The American helicopter was brought down by machine-gun fire as it was landing. A U.S. Special Forces captain and the crew chief were killed in the flaming wreckage. The pilot and a gunner were killed by enemy rifle fire as they crawled away from the wreckage after pulling out the wounded helicopter commander. The commander, a first lieutenant, and a Special Forces master sergeant, survived with minor wounds.

The new outbreak of fighting broke a week-long lull in ground action along the Cambodian border where the enemy lost 700 men during the last week of September in suicidal attacks on Green Beret camps screening infiltration routes. The enemy troops were believed to be from the Viet Cong 9th Division which has bases inside Cambodia.

In the aerial collision far to the north, headquarters said the Air Force Caribou had just taken off from Camp Evans, headquarters of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division. Thirteen men were killed aboard the Caribou, including four crewmen. Eleven others were killed on the helicopter, including four crewmen.

The loss of the helicopter shot down and the one destroyed in the aerial collision raised to 11 the number of American aircraft downed since the first of this week.

U.S. headquarters said the latest losses raised to 4,465 the number of fixed wing aircraft and helicopters lost in the Vietnam war.

891 Copters Lost

A spokesman said 904 U.S. fighter-bombers had been downed in combat over North Vietnam, including two previously unannounced for security reasons. Another 309 warplanes have been downed in combat over South Vietnam and 1,176 have been lost as the result of accidents, mechanical failures or being downed by enemy ground fire while serving as support aircraft.

The spokesman said 882 combat helicopters have been lost to enemy ground fire over South Vietnam and nine over the North. Another 1,185 helicopters were reported lost as the result of mechanical failure or pilot error or were downed by ground fire while on support missions such as medical evacuation.

U.S. pilots flew 143 missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle Thursday, the highest number since the 149 logged July 2. Pilots reported destroying or damaging 45 waterborne craft and 31 trucks moving southward.

Olympics Get Go-Ahead in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Students burned trolley cars near an Olympic field and armored cars kept their guns trained on apartment buildings where snipers had holed up, but most of the Mexican capital was quiet Thursday night.

Despite the eruption of the student rebellion into a shooting battle with army troops Wednesday night, the Olympic games still were set to open a week from Saturday.

"As guests of Mexico, we have full confidence that the Mexican people... will join the participants and spectators in celebrating the games, a veritable oasis in a troubled world," said Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, after an emergency meeting of the committee.

27 Killed

A count of casualties at hospitals and police stations showed at least 27 persons killed in Wednesday night's fighting and some Mexico City newspapers reported death tolls as high as 40. There was no official estimate of the number wounded, but it appeared to be in the hundreds. Various sources reported between 1,000 and 1,500 arrested.

The government has reported 20 deaths. Gen. Marcelino Garcia Barragan, secretary of defense, said one of the dead was a soldier.

No injuries were reported in Thursday's incidents. Students burned three streetcars in front of the Aztec Stadium where Olympic soccer games will be played, and fled before police made any arrests. Hit-and-run gunmen fired apparently random sprays of bullets in various sections of the city.

A noise bomb, which did no damage, exploded on the eastern side of the city, so far untouched by the sporadic violence that has occurred since the students went on strike two months ago, charging government repression and police brutality.

Besides armored cars at the Plaza of Three Cultures, there were other signs of continued unease.

The Mexican Olympic organizing committee placed a police guard inside its office. The Olympic teams of several nations ordered curfews for their athletes. Soldiers stood guard at some Olympic sites. And a costly space exploration exhibit was moved from the University of Mexico to an Olympic committee building.

Army troops occupied the university campus, across the street from the Olympic Stadium, from Sept. 18 until Monday because of a reported student plot to disrupt the Olympics.

When the troops pulled out, striking students returned, vowing to hold out for their demands for abolition of the riot police corps, repeal of some antisubversion laws and a guarantee of university autonomy. Several students told news- men Thursday that at least six leaders of the strike committee were killed Wednesday night. They said several others were arrested and the rest were in hiding.

Although many students, perhaps a large majority, now appear ready to abandon the strike, a hard core of strikers still is pressing for answers to the demands.

In Monterrey, students took over administration buildings and four departments at the University of Monterrey Thursday, charging that two students they had sent to support the strikers in Mexico City had disappeared.

Tie Up Traffic

Students marched in columns of fours through Chihuahua City, shouted and tied up traffic before the inauguration Thursday night of Oscar Flores as governor of Chihuahua State.

While Mexican youth is rebelling, 7,000 athletes from more than 200 nations are coming to the Mexican capital for what Brundage called "a friendly gathering of the youth of the world in amicable competition." The games are scheduled to run through Oct. 27. Brundage said Olympic officials "conferred with the Mexican authorities and we have been assured that nothing will interfere with the peaceful entrance of the Olympic flame into the stadium on Oct. 12, nor with the competitions which follow."

Bond Issue of $1,450,000 Approved for Zena School

By WALTER S. CLARK

General construction contract for the new Zena Elementary School to be located on Sawkill Road in the Town of Woodstock, was awarded to Vassar Construction, Inc., of Poughkeepsie, at Thursday night's meeting of the Kingston Board of Education. The low bid was $863,800.

The board unanimously approved a $1,450,000 bond issue to pay the cost of the new school and for the acquisition of a site.

The serial bonds will be in denominations of $5,000 each and shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed five per cent per annum. It was noted during a discussion that a tentative date when the bonds will go on the market will be Oct. 31, and indications were that the interest rate will be considerably lower than 4.25 per cent recently received for bonds sold by the Saugerties School District.

The bonds shall mature in numerical order in the amount of $135,000 on May 15 in each of the years 1970 to 1972, $145,000 on May 15, 1973; $150,000 on May 15 in each of the years 1974 and 1975, and $200,000 on May 15 in each of the years 1976 to 1978, both inclusive.

Other Contracts

Other contracts awarded for various phases of construction work at the Zena school were: heating and ventilating in the sum of $145,886 to C. B. Strain & Son, Inc., Kingston; electrical work to Timmins Electric Co., Inc., of Kingston, $79,995; plumbing to C. B. Strain, $92,000; sprinkler system to Port Sprinkler Co., of Troy, $16,960 and kitchen equipment to Lewis Equipment Co., Albany, $12,862.

In other business relating to school construction, a bid for exploratory borings for the new Rifton Elementary School, was awarded to Solitesting, Inc., the low bidder of four submitted. At the suggestion of Arthur H. Withall, board president, action was deferred on a resolution calling for approval of $500 terminal pay for a non-professional employee, after it was noted that the existing policy of such pay might not be legal. The board referred the resolution for study and a report at the next meeting.

A resolution increasing the salaries of 63 teachers who have submitted evidence of having completed graduate work, was approved. It was noted that the increases were based on upgrading resulting from new contracts and the completion of required study.

Ira M. Shaw, associate superintendent for business management, reported on the New York State Educational Data Processing Centers and spoke of the State Education Department summary of the work accomplished during the statewide study making recommendations for the development and implementation of a system of educational data processing centers throughout the state.

Preparing Master Plan

It was noted that a master plan is being prepared for the development and coordination of a system of cooperative regional educational data centers, including the establishment of evaluation and training centers. No action was taken on this plan but the board decided to keep up to date with any proceedings and to study

Chamber's Career Opportunity Day For Seniors Slated on December 23

The Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce today announced the program for the coming year for its Education Committee. Dr. Jeremiah Sachs, President of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, announced the reappointment of John R. Warren as Committee Chairman.

Award Last Year

Warren, President of CTA Public Relations, Inc., will be serving in his second consecutive year as chairman of the Education Committee. As last year's chairman, Warren received an award as Divisional Chairman for the Year, for the outstanding successful program conceived and executed by his committee.

For the 68-69 Chamber Year, Warren indicated that the Education Committee will repeat the highly successful Home Town Career Opportunities Day for college seniors. This program, inaugurated last December by the Chamber, is aimed at demonstrating to college students from Ulster County the many interesting and challenging career potentials which await them right here in their area. Warren indicated that the program this year will be conducted on Monday, Dec. 23, at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Area employers will shortly be contacted concerning participation in the program.

Warren said that, in conjunction with this activity, it is an objective of the committee to encourage other organizations within the community to sponsor activities and functions which will encourage college students to remain in the community, as well as to welcome them home for the holidays.

Committee members appointed to date include: Warren, Dr. W. Wendell Hoover, Superintendent of Schools, Dr. William B. Ittner III, IBM, Kenneth P. Pangburn, Colonial Cooperative Insurance Company, Russell Brott, New York State Employment Service, Walter H. Read, IBM and Michael Aronica, Board of Cooperative Educational Services, New Paltz. Additional members will be appointed to the committee in the near future.

Warren announced that this is the first of several activities planned by the committee this year and that other program suggestions are also encouraged from the Chamber's membership and the business community at large.

Ulster To Review Revisions

The Town of Ulster Zoning Commission will review the recommendations for revisions in the proposed zoning ordinance and the completed preliminary draft will be presented to the Town Board, it was reported at the Thursday night session of the board at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

Mrs. Doris Mulvin, Zoning Commission chairman said after the Town Board gets the preliminary draft, a public hearing will be scheduled prior to the Town Board's final decision on the zoning proposal.

Three informational meetings in various parts of the township were held and many recommendations offered to the commission. At many of these meetings it appeared that zoning would be unpopular. Following a discussion on the Leggs Mills Bridge, the Town Board announced it would press for immediate action for replacement of the one-lane span built in 1891.

The Town Board will review the preliminary town budget in executive session Monday. The budget will be ready for public inspection on Oct. 10 and a public hearing will be held Nov. 7 at 7 p. m. in Lake Katrine Grange.

The board awarded a $3,500 contract to John Spinnenweber of Port Ewen, the low bidder to install a water main on Mulvin Drive, Lake Katrine. Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz presided at the session.

Together for Wallace and LeMay, Nuclear Views Trigger Controversy

By RANDOLPH PENDLETON

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — George C. Wallace and his runningmate, retired Gen. Curtis LeMay, have begun campaigning together. But it appears for the moment LeMay will be just waving to the crowd.

LeMay, who touched off controversy at a Pittsburgh news conference Thursday with statements about nuclear weapons, appeared with Wallace here and in Indianapolis, Ind., later that day, but did not speak at either rally.

The husky, former Air Force chief of staff sat with his wife on the platform while Wallace spoke.

Wallace aides said LeMay would be traveling with Wallace through Saturday but details of his campaign plans after that were not known. Wallace speaks in Buffalo, N.Y., tonight.

Humphrey Shocked

Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey said he was "shocked and disturbed" by LeMay's comments about nuclear weapons.

Though specifying he did not feel nuclear weapons were needed in Vietnam, LeMay charged that many citizens were suffering from a "phobia" regarding them.

"We seem to have a phobia about nuclear weapons," the general said. "I think to most military men a nuclear weapon is just another weapon in the arsenal."

"Nuclear war would be horrible," he added. "To me any war is horrible. To me, if I had to go to Vietnam and get killed with a nuclear weapon, I'd rather be killed with a nuclear weapon."

Wallace has always stressed door open for stronger means the war could be won with conventional weapons.

LeMay, while also favoring conventional weapons, left the dream up, he said.

Matter of Necessity

Said LeMay: "I don't want to explode one unless I have to. I don't want to stab anyone in the back with a rusty knife unless I have to."

The ex-general said he felt more pressure should be put on Vietnam to force a settlement.

"I don't think they're going to negotiate at Paris until we twist their arms a little more," he to write laws.

Nixon on George's Race--

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has declared, for all the South to hear, that Alabama's George C. Wallace is not fit to be president of the United States.

But the Republican nominee for the White House acknowledged that the third party candidate could in the end prove to be his major rival in the Nov. 3 election.

Nixon chose a campaign television appearance broadcast across a dozen Southern states Thursday night to level his most direct assault against Wallace.

"We need policies at home that will go beyond simply saying that, well, if somebody lies down in front of my presidential limousine it will be the last one he lies down in front of," Nixon said.

His reference was to a statement Wallace had made repeatedly during his campaign that if he were president and a protest lay down in front of his car, "I will guarantee you it will be the last car they'll ever lay down in front of."

"I don't think anybody who would say that is even fit to be president," Nixon said in an interview later.

Nixon also said for the first time that he would be willing to meet Wallace in two-man, televised campaign debate. But he later added that is not going to happen, and said his comment was made facetiously.

As he has from the beginning, Nixon said campaign debates—if they are to be held—should match him and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee.

Nixon talked as well of the requirements he would set for a chief justice of the United States, now that President Johnson has withdrawn his nomination of Abe Fortas to take that post.

Nixon said he does not care whether a man is a Democrat or a Republican, a liberal or a conservative. He said he wants a chief justice who will interpret the law and leave it to Congress

TIME OUT — Vice President Humphrey signs an autograph for a young member of the band which was on hand to greet him during his campaign stop in Pineville, W. Va., Thursday. Humphrey asked supporters on the Wyoming County Courthouse steps "you do for me what you did for Jack Kennedy — you elected him President. You elect me President." (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Hubert and Staff Buoyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey says his campaign "turned the corner" during a 15-day push that carried him through wide sectors of the country.

Rallies in Portland and Seattle, Ore., were disrupted by hecklers. He admits Republican Richard M. Nixon is out in front. Lack of money forced him to cancel a batch of television commercials.

Yet Humphrey and his staff were buoyed by the size and enthusiasm of crowds that turned out in San Francisco and Charlotte, N.C. Presidential lieutenant George Ball and Douglass Cater joined the vice president's entourage. The nation's largest union—the Teamsters—gave him formal endorsement.

Democratic polls claimed he's ahead at least in eight states holding 136 of the 270 electoral votes needed for election. And in the wake of his Salt Lake City, Utah, speech advocating a qualified bombing halt, Democratic senators rose in debate to defend Humphrey at nearly the same time 10 House Democrats who had backed war critic Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy announced they now support the vice president.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said: "Humphrey has hit his everlasting life."

stride again. He seemed to be uncertain and fumbling before, but now he is the old campaigner we have known in the past.

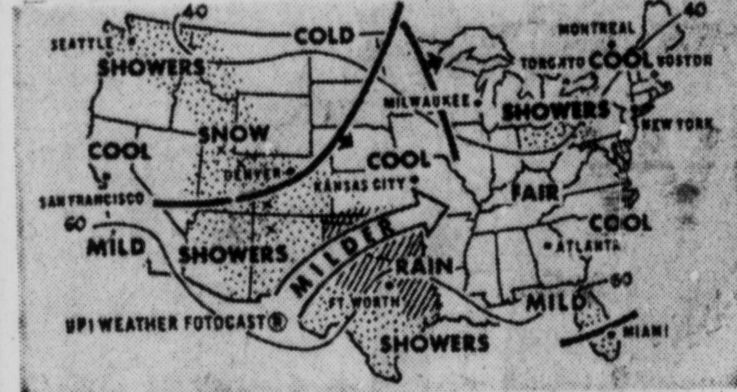

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield joined others who have predicted McCarthy will endorse Humphrey soon. McCarthy is scheduled to speak Tuesday at a rally for Paul O'Dwyer, a McCarthy backer who is challenging Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., for re-election.

Humphrey made his "turning the corner" assessment Thursday during a wet motorcade through West Virginia, where John F. Kennedy's primary victory ended Humphrey's run for the presidential nomination in 1960.

Humphrey's campaign in West Virginia charged that Republican victory means "recession, depression and unemployment."

"A Republican administration never gave you a dime," he said at a stop while driving through a string of small towns.

The ancient Egyptians believed 13 was a lucky number. For them there were 12 steps to be climbed during a lifetime. The 13th led to death.

Bell Was Against Republicans In '66 Election Is Gorman Claim

Charging that H. Clark Bell, Hamilton Fish Jr., the Democratic-Conservative Assembly candidate "came out against Republicans Kenneth L. Wilson, Jay P. Rolison and

Gorman claimed today "I can prove it." "The issue in this State Assembly campaign now," Dr. Gorman said, "is Clark Bell himself, and it is an issue that, once resolved, will control Ulster County's makeup, politically and socially, for years to come."

The Democratic candidate declared that, "In a tape made for a local radio station in 1966, Bell said that there was no difference between the Republican and Democratic parties and that when these parties win, the voters lose."

Dr. Gorman added that the tape was made for the Conservative Party urging Ulster County voters not to vote for Republican, Democratic or Liberal candidates which were, in Bell's words, "Three of a kind."

Helped Fish Lose

The Kingston surgeon asserted that, "In 1966, Hamilton Fish Jr. was exhausting himself fighting against Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick. The Conservative Party vote helped Fish lose, and Bell was right on the scene, helping Fish lose."

Also in 1966, Dr. Gorman went on, "Kenneth L. Wilson was seeking reelection as assemblyman and he did not have the Conservative endorsement. Bell was working against him."

Dr. Gorman further said, "Jay P. Rolison, looking for the State Senate seat back in 1966, also did not have the Conservative endorsement. Bell was over the other side of the fence."

The Assemblyman candidate stated, "I am addressing not only those Republican voters who, in the June 18 primary, voted for Bell's opponent, Peter J. Savago, but I am also addressing those Republicans who voted for Bell."

"Think twice," Dr. Gorman urged the Republican voters. "Look back on all we've disclosed about Bell. That he attacked the Ulster County Republican leadership there can be no doubt. That he did not support, and actively worked against, Assemblyman Wilson, State Senator Rolison, and Ham

Fish, Jr. there can be no doubt.

"And that in 1965 he spoke to a right wing political group saying that he intended to take over control of the Republican Party leadership there can be no doubt."

Dr. Gorman concluded by saying, "It must be obvious now why Bell has been so antagonistic to his party. He is not a Republican. He is anything but a Republican. He is no longer even a Conservative, but, now that the truth is out, we can see that he is for H. Clark Bell, whatever that may mean in the opportunistic range of things."

Set Candidate's Night In Woodstock Oct. 9

Congressional and assembly candidates of the district will present their views at a "Candidate's Night" in Woodstock Wednesday, Oct. 9, to which residents from throughout the county are invited. The program will start at 7:30 p.m.

Similar to one held two years ago in Kingston, the event will be moderated by Jaycee Joseph Hauser at the Woodstock Playhouse.

Appearing will be GOP candidate for Congress, Hamilton Fish Jr., Democrat John S. Dyson and Liberal Peter Kane Dufault.

Candidates for the Assembly include Republican H. Clark Bell, Democrat Dr. Gerald P. Gorman and Liberal George Majestic.

Also appearing to speak will be Supreme Court candidate Abraham Streifer.

The event is being sponsored by the Woodstock Jaycees, assisted by the Woodstock League of Women Voters. It has been planned in order to allow interested citizens to meet and hear the candidates.

LOCAL DEMS MEET O'DWYER — John Hetsco, (L) and John Parete, (R), members of the Ulster County Young Democrats, met with U. S. Senatorial candidate Paul O'Dwyer recently at the New York State Young Democrats Convention in Yonkers. The Ulster delegates were able to move a dead-locked convention into lowering the maximum age limit of young Democrats to 35, Parete said.

Local Political Activities

GOP Candidate Claims

Need Training for Deputies

Thomas F. Mayone, Republican candidate for Ulster County sheriff, speaking before a group of Town of Rochester Republicans, blasted Sheriff William Martin for the low level of training within his department. Mayone said that all deputies must receive proper and continual instruction in all phases of modern law enforcement techniques.

Stressing this point further, the GOP candidate stated that 30 per cent of the present personnel have not received any training at all.

Mayone proposed, as a part of his ten-point law enforcement program, the development of specialists in areas such as narcotics, arson, burglary and highway safety, as well as in other required specialties. He said that most of this training could be obtained at no cost to the county at schools conducted by the FBI and the New York State Police. He added that, "It's time for the sheriff's department to enter the 20th century."

Bishop to Retire

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Walter M. Higley, bishop of the Central New York Episcopal Diocese since 1960, says he will retire in February.

"The work of the church can be stronger when placed in younger hands," the 69-year-old bishop told a diocesan convention Thursday. The diocese is spread over 146 parishes in Central New York.

The Rt. Rev. Ned Cole Jr., who has been bishop coadjutor of the diocese for the past four years, will succeed Bishop Higley in February.

At Board Meeting

Wawarsing Hears of Building Code

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The Wawarsing Town Board last night heard details on the state building code, which it may adopt, designated a time for a public hearing on the hamlet of Wawarsing lighting district, appointed a special policeman and a new dog warden.

It was Thomas R. Trainer, field representative for the New York State Division of Housing and Community Renewal, who explained the meaning and outlined the specifics of the state building code.

Trainer said that the code would help developers by setting up reasonable standards for building within the boundaries of the township.

Flexible Code

He asserted that it was a "minimum standard code" that was flexible, would be entirely under the jurisdiction of the community and that "the state doesn't get involved."

Trainer further said that should any questions arise concerning differences of interpretation between the builder and the township, both parties could address themselves to the State Building Code Council which would act as a board of arbitration.

He added that 520 communities throughout the state had adopted the code.

Supervisor Frank W. Harkin asked if the town, once it adopted the code, would have any jurisdiction over the Village of Ellenville, especially in cases wherein the village, was violating the code.

Trainer explained that the village, because it was an incorporated political sub-division, would not come under the town's influence.

The only cost to the town, if it adopted the state code, would involve buying copies of the code manual—a set of books, four in all, coming to $5 a set. The board learned that the estimated cost of the Hamlet of Wawarsing lighting district would be $2,250.

The Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company's estimate would mean, for each citizen within the hamlet, $10 per $1,000 of assessed valuation of property.

Public Hearing Date

Thursday, Oct. 24 was set up for a public hearing in the Wawarsing Fire House. Installation could take place within a three-week period, according to an informed source.

George Hadley, of South Hill Road in Grahamsville, was appointed the new dog warden and Harold Reynolds, Jr. was designated as the township's special policeman.

Supervisor Harkin pointed out that the 42-year-old Reynolds had over 17 years experience as a military policeman. The new patrolman, a $4,200 a year school crossing guard in the Hamlet of Napanoch, will undergo further training in his new position.

Town Clerk Kenneth L. Mitchell informed the board of the resignation of his deputy clerk, Mrs. Janet Shildkret. He appointed his wife to fill the vacancy.

Supervisor Harkin promptly appointed Mrs. Shildkret as his confidential secretary, explaining later that she was "well qualified" to fill the position but that he did not want to comment further on the matter.

The board withheld action on extending the Kerhonkson water district to the home of Joseph lovino on West Street in the hamlet.

lovino declared that he would put $1,000 towards that project in order to get the line. Upon hearing that the board could not actually connect the line to his house, he said he would deduct whatever the operation would cost from the original $1,000.

Discussion centered about the precedent involved in extending the line for only one home, but the supervisor explained that further development was forthcoming in the area. The homeowner and the town officials decided to discuss specifics further although approval appeared certain.

Under Investigation

New Paltz Village Cop Resigns

A Village of New Paltz policeman, William R. Heck, has resigned from the village's law enforcement agency.

The patrolman was under investigation by the village through its attorney, William Gruner.

Attorney Gruner said that officer Heck was under investigation and he accepted a written statement submitted by Robert Darcy.

Heck's resignation was contained in a letter to Mayor Henry DuBois and subsequently accepted by Police Commissioner and Village Trustee Harold Phillips.

The resignation becomes effective on Friday.

At the village board meeting of Sept. 30, Robert Darcy and Richard Shindler, both of New Paltz, said that they were demanding the board take action against officer Heck and urged his dismissal.

The two men claimed that Heck was negligent in his duty. Officer Heck had told The Freeman that he was under investigation by the village board because of an alleged racial disturbance that took place in New Paltz on Sept. 21.

Involved in the disturbance, said Heck, was Darcy, Shindler, and three Poughkeepsie men, all Negroes.

Heck said that the incident occurred on Sept. 21st, a Saturday, at 10:15 p. m. when William Paden, 25, a Negro of Poughkeepsie, while talking to a white girl in Pat and George's Tavern on Main Street, was knocked to the floor by an unidentified male.

Paden, according to Heck, got up and raced outside where he produced a shotgun and pointed it at Darcy, claiming that it was Darcy who hit him.

Reportedly, Darcy fought with Paden for the gun. A friend of Paden's, Frank Rynes, also Negro of Poughkeepsie, took the gun and ran down the street with it.

Village Police Officers Heck and Richard Thompson arrived on the scene and brought Darcy, and Richard Shindler along with Paden and Rynes to the police station.

Because of the charges and counter-charges that could be leveled at all the men, Heck said he got them all to drop the charges.

Early the next morning, Paden and William Fennel, 25, also of Poughkeepsie, were involved in a fight in the Dutchess County city wherein nine people were wounded in a shotgun blast. According to Poughkeepsie police, Paden fired at Fennel and the scattering shotgun pellets wounded Fennel and eight bystanders.

Fennel, though wounded, managed to stab Paden. Both men are now out on bail and the other wounded were not hospitalized.

The Freeman learned that the New Paltz Village Board met on Sunday, Sept. 22, and Monday, Sept. 23 on the matter.

Mannello Case To Oct. 12, Changes Pleas

Charged with several vehicle and traffic violations by Kingston police last month, Ronald Mannello, 19, of Port Ewen, today appeared before City Judge Hubert A. Richter and withdrew pleas of innocent to three charges.

He pleaded guilty to operating a car with faulty tires, unlicensed operation and switched plates. Sentencing was adjourned until Oct. 12. Judge Richter reserved decision on a motion to dismiss a charge of failure to produce proof of insurance.

Charges of failure to produce a registration, speed not reasonable and prudent and operating a motor vehicle with a defective muffler, were dismissed.

The Community Chest

Ulster County's concern with the needs of all of its citizens is expressed in a united way through its annual Community Chest Campaign, which currently is underway.

Chest funds are distributed to health, welfare, family casework service and recreational agencies in Ulster County which do for us the annual work of caring for the community's needy through the Boys' Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, YWCA, Salvation Army, Cerebral Palsy, Jewish Community Center, Mental Health Clinic, Red Cross, USO, Gateway Industries and the latest participating agency the Family Centered Case-work Service.

Budgets of the 14 local agencies are carefully checked and the $345,000 goal is the minimum amount necessary to carry on their essential services.

It is well to remember when making our pledge that the Community Chest enables us to contribute but once during the year rather than face the prospects of 14 separate financial drives.

To be successful the Chest must have a wider participation by residents of the area it serves and a broader giving base. The people of this community must show a deep and dedicated interest in the accomplishments of this vital organization.

A contribution to the Ulster County Community Chest actually is an investment in this community, an investment which returns rich dividends to all residents as well as those served by the member agencies.

No other cause is more worthy. Taking a generous part in it gives us a feeling of deep satisfaction because we know we have given our fair share.

The importance of giving generously to this year's financial campaign is great. Let's show our appreciation for the work of these agencies and for the contribution made by the community spirited volunteers.

Class of '72

These are registration days for the class of 1972, the millions beginning their studies in the colleges and universities of the country. Reports from many of these campuses indicate that this is a class unique among entering classes of recent years. It is enlightening to detail some of its peculiarities.

For one thing, college and university officials have also changed. They are beginning to understand that the new students want to be taken seriously, that they are entering to gain an education, but that they want much more to say about the type of education they will get. And the colleges are responding to them.

As one keen official said, this is a class with idealism and involvement. It is an active class, but does not want to demonstrate to achieve its aims. It is, as one student official explained, where seniors now are, in its approach. It is a promising class and we hope and believe it could make a big contribution to education and to the country.

The faculty change is that they want to show freshmen that, contrary to students' major criticisms, college can be relevant to life, that intellectual pursuits can relate to the vital issues of the day. Given these attitudes among students and faculty, there should be a meeting of minds that will work for the good of both—and of the intellectual life they each seek.

Yet these are young people in whom the seeds of rebellion have already been sown, and if they begin by listening to the wrong people, and following their loud cries for power, all their good plans can go awry. Learning without direction and discipline is not possible.

Good News From Germany

After a year of uninterrupted successes, the neo-Nazi National Democratic Party has suffered a setback at the polls. The party, anti-American, antidemocratic, anti just about everything postwar West Germany has stood for drew only 5.2 per cent of the vote in local balloting in the state of Lower Saxony.

It was there that the NYP began to rise a year ago with an unexpected seven per cent showing in legislative elections. Increasing strength in succeeding elections, establishing the NDP as a political force in seven of the 11 states, aroused fears at home and abroad that recent unpleasant German history might be preparing to repeat itself.

The NDP has figured prominently in the Soviet Union's attempts to justify occupation of Czechoslovakia and in the subsequent belligerent propaganda barrage against West Germany. Soviet hostility may well have been a major factor in lessening voter enthusiasm for the would-be strongmen of the far right.

Whatever the reasons, the NDP's setback is to be welcomed. The chapter of history it echoes is one Germany least of all should want to see repeated.

Doesn't Anyone Have a Compass?

Henry J. Taylor Says

Ball's Outrageous Display

Our in-and-out United Nations Ambassador George W. Ball can only be a severe disillusionment to his many friends. His conscience should have shut off his recent shabby performances like a faucet.

After his confirmation Mr. Ball served in the U.N. less than 24 hours. The Senate confirmed him on a Wednesday. Thursday he announced his bow-out. He was, in fact, the living image of Pickwick's Fat Boy; now you saw him, now you didn't. In the national interest Mr. Ball has a great deal to answer for by his outrageous display.

The U.N. Ambassadorship is an American representation to the eyes of the world. If Mr. Ball disagrees with United States policy in Vietnam or elsewhere so strongly, or is susceptible to other plans, he should not have taken the ambassadorship in the first place.

The appearance of instability, quicksand and stimulation of world doubts are luxuries America cannot afford. The murder of the United States by such appearance in the U.N. is more than a spectator's sport. Doesn't our country have enough troubles in the world, and certainly in the U.N., without our new Ambassador's in-out, and right on the heels of the world-questioned departure of Arthur J. Goldberg?

Mr. Ball reveals himself as a promising man who soon broke the promise. This is always a tragedy to see. He showed disillusioning qualities, too, in starting his climb aboard politics by playing dirty pool.

Every man has a right to his own opinion, but no man worth his salt has a right to be wrong in his facts.

Mr. Ball obviously has a right to like Hubert H. Humphrey and dislike Richard M. Nixon. But he has no right to employ and restate the cheap and dangerous charge of "tricky Dick." It is a vicious injustice.

Mr. Ball cannot document that snide propaganda nor actually have I ever found a single man or woman in our country who could. What makes this especially unfair is that it could be applied to so many other public men. I myself could name, and so could Mr. Ball, any number who coldly viewed in a document list, might qualify. But, in simple truth, not Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Ball and others may disapprove of Nixon but not for this reason. They should put their facts on the line. I for one would be glad to bet Mr. Ball that he cannot name a single promise Nixon ever broke. Even a convict is entitled to fair treatment.

With equal dishonor to the facts Mr. Ball and others contrast Mr. Humphrey as a public man of consistency, a fighter for his principles. They may approve of Mr. Humphrey but not for this reason.

Again, what are the facts? It's monster time again in Loch Ness, Scotland, when anybody pumps out such utter nonsense. Mr. Humphrey swings and has always swung on a high wire of self-contradictions. Even my limited files present painful evidence.

Thumbed at random Mr. Humphrey first voted for the Landrum-Griffin Act affecting unionization. Then at subsequent labor meetings he always denounced it, saying, "It was passed for the purpose of tying labor's hands." Or take the McCarran bill requiring members of the Communist party and its hidden fronts to register with the Attorney General.

Within a period of only two weeks Mr. Humphrey first castigated the bill as a "hoax." Then he voted in favor of it. Next he praised the Presidential veto of it. Then he voted to sustain the veto, a veto that was overridden.

Later Mr. Humphrey eulogized the McCarran Act, boasted that he voted for it and announced that he "was proud to say it was passed by a Democratic Congress."

Do Mr. Ball and the others ask us to forget, as well, that only a few weeks ago, to show that Mr. Humphrey's acrobatic act is still current, and as wisely noted, he made four different statements on Vietnam substantially in conflict with each other on one single day?

No wonder it's so hard to condense the fog in the Washington Cuckoo land into a cooling rain and proceed with the vital business of making the United States a better, fairer, more secure place to live.

As a result of that dreadful fire, 6,000 design changes were made in the Apollo. All were intended to increase the safety factor.

A considerable number of highly skilled men were diverted into this effort. A wide range of other activities were slowed down (or not speeded up on schedule) while these changes were being planned, studied and incorporated.

This shift in the Apollo and in program priorities, however necessary, by minimum estimate has cost the United States upwards of six months in the moon race.

It certainly cost this country first place in the attempt to circle the moon and return. Work on that part of the program was one of the tasks not speeded up on schedule.

In a very real sense, a project as complicated and as lengthy as the moon program is a prisoner of decisions made early in the game. Once these decisions are incorporated into the project, it becomes very costly and time-consuming to make major changes.

Having been somewhat careless in building an Apollo with a highly inflammable pure oxygen atmosphere in the first place, there are signs that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration may have overreacted. So some careful space scientists believe.

Despite the latest Russian moon success, which no one here downgrades as an example of high technical efficiency, the thinking in the scientific community here is still that the United States is slightly ahead of the Russians overall in the technical requirements of the moon race.

Some knowledgeable scientists believe, in fact, that even as things now stand, the United States could almost certainly win the race to the moon, despite the delay already caused by the Apollo fire, if it weren't for the lack of confidence and perhaps overcaution the fire has created in the minds of NASA management.

This extra cautiousness will almost inevitably affect all decisions from here on out, even after the Apollo safety corrections have long been completed.

It is impossible to argue against men who want to provide more safety for our astronauts. No one wants to take undue chances. But overcaution can get to be a sort of complex. As one scientist puts it, it is very wise to look both ways before crossing the street. It can become a sickness, seven or eight times each time you come to a crossing.

A second handicap the United States faces today in the moon race is the handicap of divided effort. U.S. space development is split between the Pentagon with its Manned Orbiting Laboratory Project and NASA with its Apollo.

Neither is getting the full attention or backup it deserves. There is reason to believe Russia's space program is under one management with one priority system.

Drew Pearson Says

Slick 'Nixon Package' Is New But Product Hasn't Changed

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon has surrounded himself with as efficient a staff as has ever conducted a presidential campaign. In the Madison Avenue jargon they speak, they have "packaged" the candidate with a slickness that hasn't been matched since the build-up of the Esso tiger.

Like the Esso tiger, Nixon has been carefully coached to conceal his ferocious nature. He smiles into the cameras. His voice has a friendly rumble. He slides over controversial issues like Vietnam. He suppresses his past penchant for making nasty cracks about the Democrats. He avoids TV confrontations.

This bland, pleasant campaign has just about succeeded in making the public forget the rock-sock-em Nixon who used to call his opponents "soft on communism," the belligerent Nixon who threw a punch at an advertising aide during the 1960 campaign, the darkly angry Nixon who blew up at the press after his defeat for governor of California in 1962.

To keep Nixon's temper from erupting, his campaign managers hustle him to bed early at night, encourage him to take time off and otherwise try to relieve the pressures that kept him constantly edgy in 1960. They haven't forgotten how he lost his temper with Everett Hart, vice president of the famed BBD&O advertising firm, who had taken a leave of absence during the 1960 campaign to help Nixon.

The day before the election, Nixon showed up in Detroit for a four-hour telethon. He complained petulantly, as he prepared for the telecast, that too many unauthorized people were in the studio. Hart explained that press aide Herb Klein had let them in.

Tersely, Nixon ordered Hart to "get me Major Hughes." Hart suggested that since they would be on the air in a few minutes he had better devote the remaining time to coaching Nixon. In any case, Hart said it wasn't his function to fetch Major Hughes.

The infuriated Nixon exploded and let fly a fist at Hart. Nixon was in the pink of condition; Hart had a shriveled right arm and was recovering from an open-heart operation. The blow might have killed him.

When Nixon's chartered plane took off for Los Angeles that night, Hart refused to board it and flew by commercial airliner. He never came back to the Nixon entourage. Early in the 1968 campaign, one of Nixon's law partners asked Hart to rejoin Nixon's TV team, but Hart quietly refused.

Nixon's handlers also remember the terrible scene he made after losing the 1962 California gubernatorial race to Gov. Edmund Brown. The TV shots of Nixon haranguing reporters at his post-election press conference, vowing that they would never get a chance to criticize him again, reveal a dramatically different side than the public is now seeing.

Despite all the pains the image makers have taken not to let anything ruffle their candidate and mar the new image they have created for him, there is always the risk in a political campaign of an unforeseen incident.

For example, the public address system in the Schroeder hotel ballroom went on the blink the other day. Nixon started to whirl around, an irritated scowl upon his face. But he caught himself in time and broke into an Esso tiger smile.

"The only concern is that his smile is forced," a former Nixon aide confided to this column, having quit the campaign over Nixon's failure to discuss the issues. "That guy looks unnatural when he smiles."

This recalls the quote of another aide in 1960, Theodore H. White, the chronicler of presidential campaigns, told how a TV adviser emerging from Nixon's Waldorf-Astoria suite was greeted by an anxiety-ridden speech writer. "How's the meanest man in the world this morning?" asked the speech writer, not entirely in jest.

Those who know Dick Nixon say he can also be a warm, affable, likeable human being, and his managers are determined to keep the campaign spotlight focused on his sunny side.

Taking no chances, they are delicately trying to avoid a Nixon-Humphrey debate. They don't want a repetition of the historic Nixon-Kennedy debate, which many believe cost Nixon the 1960 election. As a result, Nixon has passed the word to GOP Congressional leaders to obstruct special legislation which would open the way for a Nixon-Humphrey debate.

He has also refused to appear before any TV press panels, such as "Meet the Press," which might produce an embarrassing question or slip of the tongue. His TV advisers prefer to purchase their own TV time, so they can carefully edit what the public sees.

Meanwhile, Nixon's campaign is humming along with computer-like efficiency. His campaign center at 445 Park Avenue, New York City, operates more like Nixon, Inc., than Nixon-for-President headquarters. There is little of the hoopla and hysteria that swirls in most campaign headquarters. The atmosphere is strictly businesslike.

Even on the campaign trail, a telecopier keeps the candidate informed on all the latest developments while he is in the air, and an air-ground telephone keeps him in constant touch with his political bases.

Invariably his plane lands on schedule, he is met at the ramp by a Lincoln Continental, and the motorcade moves off at the prearranged moment. He delivers his prepared speech, and the crowd usually cheers at the precise places anticipated in the script.

The Madison Avenue hucksters are supremely confident that they can market Smilin' Dick and persuade the American people to put a "tiger" in the White House.

U.S. Still May 'Win' Moon Despite Hangups on Apollo

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is just possible that the Apollo fire of January, 1967, which took the lives of three astronauts may have cost the United States first place in the race for the moon.

As a result of that dreadful fire, 6,000 design changes were made in the Apollo. All were intended to increase the safety factor.

A considerable number of highly skilled men were diverted into this effort. A wide range of other activities were slowed down (or not speeded up on schedule) while these changes were being planned, studied and incorporated.

This shift in the Apollo and in program priorities, however necessary, by minimum estimate has cost the United States upwards of six months in the moon race.

It certainly cost this country first place in the attempt to circle the moon and return. Work on that part of the program was one of the tasks not speeded up on schedule.

In a very real sense, a project as complicated and as lengthy as the moon program is a prisoner of decisions made early in the game. Once these decisions are incorporated into the project, it becomes very costly and time-consuming to make major changes.

Having been somewhat careless in building an Apollo with a highly inflammable pure oxygen atmosphere in the first place, there are signs that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration may have overreacted. So some careful space scientists believe.

Despite the latest Russian moon success, which no one here downgrades as an example of high technical efficiency, the thinking in the scientific community here is still that the United States is slightly ahead of the Russians overall in the technical requirements of the moon race.

Some knowledgeable scientists believe, in fact, that even as things now stand, the United States could almost certainly win the race to the moon, despite the delay already caused by the Apollo fire, if it weren't for the lack of confidence and perhaps overcaution the fire has created in the minds of NASA management.

This extra cautiousness will almost inevitably affect all decisions from here on out, even after the Apollo safety corrections have long been completed.

It is impossible to argue against men who want to provide more safety for our astronauts. No one wants to take undue chances. But overcaution can get to be a sort of complex. As one scientist puts it, it is very wise to look both ways before crossing the street. It can become a sickness, seven or eight times each time you come to a crossing.

A second handicap the United States faces today in the moon race is the handicap of divided effort. U.S. space development is split between the Pentagon with its Manned Orbiting Laboratory Project and NASA with its Apollo.

Neither is getting the full attention or backup it deserves. There is reason to believe Russia's space program is under one management with one priority system.

Democrats interviewed agreed that Humphrey appeared likely to suffer more than Republican Richard M. Nixon from the Wallace presence on the ballot.

One ranking Republican forecast a victory for Nixon, with Wallace drawing about 12 per cent of the total vote.

"He'll take away from both major candidates," the Republican leader said, "but the vice president will be hit much harder."

Democratic regulars, including State Chairman John Burns, are hoping that Humphrey's promise to risk a bombing halt in the Vietnam War will serve to draw anti-war Democrats back into the organization fold.

Beyond that, they're hoping for what one leader termed an "erosion" of Wallace strength as the election draws closer.

"It's a question," another Democrat said, "of just how many people stay mad and insist on wasting a vote."

The Nixon people may after the election — have their own ideas on what constitutes a "wasted" vote.

Wallace to Appear in Albany, Key Democratic Figures Worried

By GERRY McLAUGHLIN

ALBANY, N.Y. AP — Barring a last-minute hitch in plans, George Wallace will personally unfurl his "Courage Party" presidential banner in upstate New York today.

The former Alabama governor and his retinue of bodyguards are to appear in Buffalo for a dinner and a rally. Needless to say, political people all over the state will be watching to see how Wallace fares a month before the election in the state's second largest city.

Watching with special concern will be the New York state legislators for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who received a warm welcome in Buffalo Sept. 17.

Buffalo, with its large population of industrial workers has been pictured by some political observers as a community in which Wallace is likely to receive substantial support in the Nov. 5 election.

It's probably no accident that Wallace chose to launch his upstate New York campaign in an area that 12 of his 43 candidates for election call home.

Many pro-Humphrey Democrats are plainly worried about their man's prospects.

Some Democratic leaders who a month ago shrugged off the Wallace candidacy as little more than a nuisance now are conceding some error.

Talks with a dozen or more key Democratic figures in this state showed that some of them feel the third-party candidate could capture as much as 20 per cent of the presidential vote here.

"I'm somewhat surprised by Wallace's support here," one Democratic mayor said. "He'll get at least 10 per cent of the vote in my community and perhaps as much as 20 per cent."

"I'm sorry to say," another Democratic executive said, "that he'll do as well as he will do. We're to deliver for Humphrey but it's going to be close."

Other Democrats, who also asked not to be identified, expressed apprehension over the impact of the Wallace drive on Humphrey's chances.

Mrs. Mary (Dunn) Ring
Mrs. Mary (Dunn) Ring, of 341 Church Street, Poughkeepsie, died Wednesday. She was born in Kingston in 1889, the daughter of Michael and Bridget Dunn. She was the widow of John Henry Ring. She is survived by five daughters, Agnes Ring Alfano, Catherine Hardy, Mary DeCittis, Patricia Raeder, and Jean Letterii; and a son, William H. Ring. Funeral will be held Saturday from the Miller Funeral Home, Montgomery Street, Poughkeepsie. A Mass or requiem will be offered at 9:45 a. m. in St. Mary's Church, Poughkeepsie. The preliminary budget for 1969 and the status of the dump were the primary points of discussion at Thursday night's Saugerties Town Board meeting held at Town Hall.

Supervisor A. Michael Schovel said there was considerable discussion on the town budget and the effect of the initial cost of implementing the retirement plan for town employees through the state. It has been estimated that the initial cost of the plan to be added to the new budget will be $16,000.

However, Sup. Schovel said he is checking further with Albany to determine if the entire amount must be met in this budget. Schovel said he believes that the town can be operated within the same amount allocated in last year's budget. The problem of the town dump on the former Cashdollar property in Woodstock was discussed. John Cashdollar recently sold the property to the Town of Woodstock. The status of the Saugerties contract with Cashdollar which expires in 1972 will be checked by Town Attorney Louis P. Francello. The Woodstock dump will have to be operated as a landfill project after Jan. 1 in accordance with a mandate from the State Health Department. The Saugerties supervisor said that he and Councilman George Turner have been checking alternate sites in the event some agreement can not be reached on the Woodstock land fill site.

Sup. Schovel said he had received several requests for the posting of caution signs at school bus stops. He said he discussed the matter with a school official and believes that the school will agree to provide the signs if the town installs them.

The supervisor commended the councilmen today and said they have accepted areas of responsibility and all are doing a good job.

BALLOONING PROBLEM—Kevin Jackson (R) a sailor aboard the U. S. Navy destroyer Lloyd Thomas had a problem. He decided to bring his girl friend Martha Pritchard a present, a big red tracer balloon measuring 4-ft. across. He is shown at City Square, MBTA subway station in Boston, being told by motorman (L) balloon would probably be broken even if he did get it aboard. He was given ride in car by sympathetic witness to girl's apartment. While going down hall, balloon came in contact with hot light bulb. End of problem. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

In Deep Trouble

Wisconsin Demos

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—The ghosts of elections past and the problems of the present—on the streets at home and on the battlefields overseas—have Wisconsin Democrats in deep trouble.

Not even the name of La Follette, once a magic monicker here, is expected to be enough to halt a Republican landslide that could push the GOP to victory in almost every major contest in the state.

The one exception may be the race for U.S. Senate, where Sen. Gaylord Nelson, a once popular Democratic governor, is considered a slight favorite.

Adopted State
Going into the final month of the campaign, Hubert H. Humphrey, who once "adopted" Wisconsin Democrats because the state had two Republican dog here. Richard M. Nixon has senators, is the definite underdog in an election or primary in Wisconsin and does not figure to do so now.

Neither does two-term Republican Gov. Warren P. Knowles in turning back the challenge of young Bronson La Follette, grandson of the late and legendary Sen. Robert M. (Fighting Bob) La Follette. Humphrey, who once called himself Wisconsin's "third senator," finds himself hobbled by a state party torn asunder by a 1966 Republican sweep and the "new politics" of another Minnesotan.

Three-Way Split
The split, in fact, appears to be three-way, with the vice president in the middle, supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy on the one side, and backers of George C. Wallace on the other.

McCarthyites swept into party power when their man took 57 per cent of the Democratic vote in the April presidential primary. Humphrey has yet to win their hearts.

And oldline Democrats, many of them blackballed from the Wisconsin delegation to the national convention, are having trouble regrouping behind the vice president.

The maverick Wallace threat indicates they should. The Alabamian appears to be making more inroads among blue collar Democrats—mostly on Milwaukee's South Side—than in the Fox River Valley, the region that produced the late Sen. Joseph J. McCarthy. That could mean trouble for the Democrats.

In the past, it has been essential that Democrats carry the Milwaukee South Side almost as a block in order to win Wisconsin.

Wallace, Nixon, and Nixon's running mate, Spiro T. Agnew, have all stressed the "law and order" issue in their stops in Wisconsin—and have been paid off in hearty applause. There is reason. Wisconsin, in recent months, has been the site of some of the most persistent civil disturbances in the nation. The Madison campus of the University of Wisconsin has been the site of violent anti-war demonstrations.

The only ace the Democrats hold in Wisconsin may be Nelson. Known as the "conservative governor" when he served in the statehouse, he has continued along those lines in his one term in the Senate. His dovish stand on Vietnam is also not unpopular.

Social Security Benefit Changes In New Booklet

A youth injured in an automobile accident in 1966 and facing a long period of recuperation was not surprised to find that he had not worked for social security long enough to qualify for disability benefits.

A change included in the 1967 amendments, however, reduces the amount of work credit needed to qualify for disability benefits. Today the worker and his family are collecting nearly $2,800 a year, based on his average pay of $3,500 before he became disabled.

This and other examples are included in a new social security booklet announced this week by George J. Habernig, the social security district manager in Kingston. The booklet, "Social Security for Young Families," tells in detail how social security operates for the young worker.

The booklet explains how a young worker builds up survivors and disability protection, what it can mean to a family, and how to make an application should it become necessary. Also included is information on how to check your social security account and the financing of social security.

The booklet is especially important since the 1967 amendments include a number of changes of particular importance to young workers and their dependents, Habernig said. A person disabled before the age of 24 can now get disability payments for himself and his family with 1½ years of work in the 3 years before he became disabled. If he is disabled between age 24 and 31, he needs social security credit for half the time between age 21 and when he became disabled. Under the old law these benefits could not be paid unless there had been five years of work out of the last 10 years.

Copies of this booklet may be obtained free of charge from the social security office at 57 Albany Avenue, Kingston.

Bucharest---A Deceptive Air of Calm

By CARL HARTMAN

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP)—Light traffic, Victorian architecture and dusty, tree-lined streets give Romania's capital a deceptive air of calm. Behind it lies fear of occupation by Soviet troops and tanks.

Officials do not speak of the fear. President Nicolae Ceausescu goes his own independent way in foreign policy. That is what makes Soviet invasion a possibility. But he keeps a tight Communist rein on press and government. That policy should reassure Moscow.

Though Ceausescu denounced the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia, since then he has avoided irritating the Kremlin.

The Soviet Union pulled its last troops out of Romania in 1958, after an occupation of more than 13 years. A few years later, Romania began to show signs of independence.

Now it has virtually withdrawn from cooperation with the Warsaw military pact.

But Romania should have less reason to fear Soviet invasion than Czechoslovakia had.

Strategically, it presents no threat to Soviet security. Czechoslovakia has long borders with West Germany and Austria, only a short border with the Soviet Union. Romania has a long border with Russia, no border at all with the West.

Nevertheless, the nervous Romanians have been strengthening their forces along their borders with Communist countries, so much so that soldiers who usually help with the harvest are not available. This has worried university students, due back for the new term Oct. 1.

"I may have to 'volunteer' for a couple of weeks work in the fields just then," one of them said. "Anyhow, they call it volunteering."

In domestic politics, Czechoslovakia showed liberal tendencies the Soviets considered dangerous. Censorship was abolished. The possibility arose that non-Communist parties would be permitted to work freely. There was widespread sentiment for neutrality.

But Romania lives under a rigid Communist system. There are not even puppet non-Communist parties as there are in other East European countries. Yet in his own way Ceausescu—just turned 50—belongs to the new generation of liberalizers in the Communist world. Political prisoners seem to have been all released, and a great burden of fear has been lifted from the shoulders of the average Romanian.

"The Romanian is still wary of contact with foreigners," the diplomat said. "He gets told all the time that it's dangerous—the difference is now that he is warned against foreigners from the East as well as the West. And the policeman's knock on the door in the middle of the night is gone."

All this may frighten the Soviets a little, especially when they see relations improving between Romania and its non-aligned Communist neighbor, Yugoslavia, an old thorn in Moscow's side. So the Soviet pressure on Romania is kept up. Meanwhile, nothing much actually happens in Romania, but Romanians are afraid something just possibly might.

Local collector's night is scheduled at the library at 8 p.m. Monday. It will feature non-commercial local collections of such items as photographs, coins, currency, bottles, sandwich glass, paperweights, antique patchwork quilts, sea shells and rocks.

An illustrated lecture on local natural history by Mrs. Alvin McKaig of Pine Bush, a member of the Nature Division of the Photographic Society of America, will be given Tuesday in the library at 8 p.m. Mrs. McKaig uses slides of the Shawangunk Mountains.

The public is invited to meet area artists and authors at a tea to be served Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the library. At 7:30 p.m. that day the U.S. Air Force band from Stewart Field will present a concert in the main auditorium of the Ellenville Central School. Robert Woodhouse is chairman for this event.

The Napanoch children will have an opportunity to see the film, "Paddle-to-the Sea" at the Napanoch Methodist Church Monday, Oct. 7 at 3:30 p.m.

Children from the kindergarten through the sixth grade were invited to attend the showing of the film "Doughnut," taken from the book, "Homer Price" by Robert McCloskey scheduled for 3:45 p.m. today.

Of special interest to the children was a special preschool story hour for children not in the regular story hour program. This was held starting at 10 a.m. Thursday. At 4 p.m. yesterday the Autorino family of Napanoch held a folk song fest in the Children's Room of the library.

Puppet Show

During the author-artist tea on Wednesday at the library, there will be a puppet show to entertain those children whose parents are at the tea as well as any other children who wish to attend.

Mrs. Robert Ellison is chairman of the collectors night program Monday night.

The Ellenville Public Library first opened its doors to the public, Oct. 3, 1893. That event brought comment in local newspapers, "... visitors uniformly express surprise and gratification at the varied and valuable collection of books and the admirable system under which they have been catalogued and arranged for the convenience of patrons."

At that time, the library occupied space in the First National Bank building. The librarian was Michael Hogan, first and to date the only man to have held that position. The first Board of Trustees comprised Professor F. A. Woodward, the Rev. Octavius Applegate Jr., James W. Donaldson, William W. Lambert and Frank B. Hoornbeek. These trustees elected Professor Woodward as chairman.

Legislature Proposal:

Asks Ulster Role in Water Study

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The County Legislature next Thursday night will act on a proposal to petition the governor to include Ulster County in the state's study for eventual use of the Hudson River as a source of water supply.

In a resolution to be introduced by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Newburgh, the county board would petition Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to include two representatives of Ulster County in the membership of any task force or committee named to be responsible for consideration and implementation of the City of New York-Westchester County plan to tap the Hudson River at Hyde Park in Dutchess County.

Comprehensive Study

This is in conjunction with the State Health Department's comprehensive public water supply study for New York City and Westchester County, which would propose development of facilities for withdrawal of 1,000 million gallons per day water supply from the Hudson River at Hyde Park.

The state, Westchester and New York City officials after evaluation of the proposal would recommend the appointment of a committee of six, two from each of the above political sub-divisions to consider and present recommendations regarding legal, financial and procedural problems incidental to development of a major new water supply.

The recommendation would call for immediate action and preparation of the necessary legislation for consideration during the 1969 session of the State Legislature. The resolution notes the plan includes aspects beneficial to Ulster County.

Another Proposal

Another proposal for county

legislative action Thursday night is a resolution to be introduced by Melvin Mones, R-Kingston, and Clifford Snyder, R-Saugerties, for the appointment of a Committee of Investigation including seven residents from various geographical areas of the county, to compile, study and evaluate information relative to the feasibility of creating a County Senior Citizens Housing Authority and/or a County Low Income Housing Authority. The committee would be directed to report results and recommendations to the County Legislature within six months.

The resolution recognizes the need for more senior citizen housing. A resolution to be introduced by Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties, seeks authorization for the creation of a committee to set up a priority list of new comprehensive public water services, projects and programs, supply study for New York City and expansion of existing ones and as the need arises. This would establish priorities for future cities for withdrawal of 1,000 million gallons per day water supply from the Hudson River at Hyde Park.

The committee would annual study, review and evaluate existing, proposed, anticipated services, projects and programs of the county and submit a report annually to the County Legislature. According to the resolution the report should be filed one month prior to the last day of a public hearing can be held on the tentative annual county budget.

To Move on Airport. Eugene K. Noe, R-9th District will introduce a resolution seeking the reappointment of the Airport Commission.

In a similar resolution by Legislator Noe, the county board will be asked to approve the appointment of members to the County Planning Board. The names of the "candidates" have been submitted by the various towns and villages of the county.

Hudson River Spans Report '68 Increase

Traffic on the five Hudson River bridges and revenue from tolls collected on the five spans for the first nine months of 1968 showed an increase compared with the figures for the same three-quarter period in 1967, according to reports released by the State Bridge Authority.

Statistics for September, 1968 noted, however, decreases in traffic and revenue for the Kingston-Rhinecliff and Rip Van Winkle bridges. Increases in revenue and traffic for the other three bridges were reported for the month.

Revenue for the nine-month period for the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge increased $11,313 from $403,205.75 in 1967 to $414,518.75. Revenue for the Rip Van Winkle Bridge for the same period increased $10,190.35 from $364,642.55 in 1967 to $374,832.90 this year.

Traffic on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge for the nine-month period -- January-September, 1968 increased 53,164 from 1,497,831 in 1967 to 1,551,475 in 1968. Traffic on the Catskill span increased 35,332 from 1,203,881 to 1,239,233 this year.

The SBA report notes that revenue for September, 1968 totaling $48,758.75 from the Kingston span, dropped $760.75

'Legend of Rip Van Winkle' Kiwanis Club '68 Presentation

"The Legend of HIP Van Winkle," is the title of the 1968 Kingston Kiwanis Club Kapers that will be presented the nights of Oct. 22-24 at the Kingston High School auditorium.

John McCullough, writer-director of the show, said the classical Washington Irving story has been up-dated by the Kingston Kiwanis Club. In the up-dating, Rip sleeps through the last 20 years, from 1948 to 1968, according to McCullough. "When Rip awakens he is found by a group of Hippies at a love-in," he said, "and they quite naturally assume from his appearance that Rip is one of them. The ensuing complications form the basis for the musical in three very funny acts."

McCullough said that, as usual, both male and female parts will be played by members of the local Kiwanis Club. They will be assisted by four talented locally prominent singers and actresses, Betty Lindsay, Nina Werbalowsky, Betty Friday and Mary Ann McCullough. Music will be furnished by Harry Maiselhelder and his orchestra. The show is being presented by the Kiwanis Club to raise funds for its scholarship awards to local students.

A girl, about 11 years old, is being treated at the Cerebral Palsy Center in Kingston. Yesterday she was lying on a mattress gurgling, waiting to be fitted for a brace. She is considered one of the center's toughest cases. She was five years old before the center first saw her, and is expected to be a Palsy victim the rest of her life.

Another girl was sitting in the waiting room with her mother. A year ago she was unable to communicate with anyone, but yesterday she could be heard complaining of a headache by everyone in the room.

Both are at the center for help. The one with the speech problem had a smile on her face. The other child was unable to smile. The assistance given them and the more than 150 others makes the center what executive director Charlotte Peck likes to call "a home of hope."

Special Devices

Located across from Kingston City Hall in a building that also houses the Ulster County Tumor Clinic and the Kingston Laboratory, the center's cramped many-roomed quarters is equipped with a wide array of special devices, many made by hand.

The equipment, much of it expensive, some of it made at no cost by friends, serves in the treatment and training of disabilities such as neuro-muscular disorders, birth defects (other than Palsy), speech and hearing problems, brain injuries, orthopedic problems, as well as Cerebral Palsy.

One of 14 agencies of the Ulster County Community Chest, the center is dependent almost totally upon the contributions of the public during the annual fund drives. The "Winning Beat" of this year's drive has a goal of $345,000 for the support of the agencies.

Now more than half over, the drive seeks the assistance of Ulster County residents in the Chest area to continue the many services offered year round.

Most, like the Palsy center, are equipped with special devices to assist and train the persons undergoing treatment.

Many rooms of the Palsy center are outfitted with sensitive and expensive hearing and speech machines, while others are equipped with special steps and chairs used in the training of the patients.

Can See Own Progress

Mirrors are set up in many of the small rooms to allow the youngsters to see their own progress. The mirrors also serve a major function in the speech rooms, where lip movement is receive some assistance from the agencies of the Community Chest. Thousands have been treated at the Palsy center since it opened in 1951. In 1967 some 8,000 were given treatment or consultation, according to the director. But, the "world of the deaf," as she called it and the worlds of the others assisted at the center, are in obvious need of support from the public in this annual appeal.

William Pearson, general campaign chairman, noted recently that "time is getting short." He said that if residents have not already been approached for their contribution, they should make an effort to give on their own.

Pancake Event Scheduled as Hobbit Benefit

A pancake brunch will be held Saturday 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. at the local Montgomery Wards store to raise funds for the Hobbit, Ulster Coffee House.

The benefit is jointly sponsored by the store and WGHQ radio station. A feature of the event will be eating contest between "Slim" Harry Thayer and "Big Boy" Jim Thompson. Many area clergymen, civic officials and leading political candidates of both parties are expected to attend and take turns as chefs.

Music to eat pancakes by will be supplied by teenage entertainers from the coffee house.

There will be free gifts for the first 400 pancake eaters who take advantage of the bargain—all the coffee and pancakes they can consume for a very nominal sum.

As of Jan. 1, 1968, Japan had 129,000 buses registered, an increase of 14,700 bus registrations from the preceding year.

More than two out of every three persons in Ulster County year.

CARE OF FUCHSIAS: Few house plants are more graceful and lovely than the fuchsia ("Few-shuh"), commonly known as Lady's Ear Drops. winter as it will be woody and difficult to get to bloom. Young plants are more floriferous and more shapely.

Sometimes you can cut the old parent plant back and get a new plant from this. Grow the fuchsia in a bright window, and give plant plenty of moisture (not too soggy). And while we're on the subject of house plants, better take a peek at your gloxinia.

If it's been allowed to dry off, pretty soon new growth will start and that will be a signal to give it water and a fairly bright window. Tall lanky plants indicate not enough light. While the gloxinia does not like direct sun, it should be in a bright window.

DAHLIA CARE: Wait until frost blackens the tops of your dahlias before cutting them off. After that you can clip the stems off two inches above the ground, then the clump is lifted carefully so as not to break the necks.

You can leave some soil around the roots. The clumps can be stored upside down to get water out of stalk. Best storage temperature is anywhere from 35 to 50 degrees. Some gardeners cover the clumps with damp peat moss to protect them from drying out. During the storage period it's a good idea to check the roots to see if any have shriveled or rotted. Some shriveling is normal, so by the time planting season rolls around in spring, don't be alarmed if your roots are dried. They'll expand after planting and send forth sprouts.

STORING ONIONS: Onions like a dry storage and temperature as low as possible, a hard combination to find in modern homes. Store in a tray so that air may circulate around the bulbs and prevent rot. Dry off your onions before storing.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "We want to grow some parsley in our bay window. What care does it need? Would you start them from seed or plants dug from the garden?"

Answer: A pot of parsley is mighty nice to have during the winter. Start new plants from seed sown now, or dig up a clump from the garden. Get a lot of soil with it, as parsley does not have a good root system and may wilt before it gets a chance to recover.

The Greta Offers Small, Modern Ranch

By JACK MCELENEY

Today's design is a dwelling accenting modern compact efficiency. Contemporary in design, it will look pretty in any neighborhood. An excellent example of good traffic planning is contained in this three-bedroom design, called The Greta.

All three bedrooms are in the rear, with a family bath to the right for easy access. The living room has a modern fireplace and large picture window, is well out of line of general movement through the house, a factor desired by most homemakers.

In keeping with modern trend, the dining space has been located in the kitchen area, and space for working equipment is plentiful along two walls of the kitchen proper. The front entrance is located between the kitchen and living room, and opens on a foyer that provides access to either of these rooms.

A carport, sheltered by the main roof, has a large storage space at the rear, a detail every homeowner appreciates. The living space contains 946 square feet and the carport 312 square feet. The dimensions of the basic house are 36 x 26 feet and the overall, with carport, comes to 48 feet.

Blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon. The plans also include sections for the use of brick, cement block, stone, slab or crawl space construction. Plans are also available for construction with or without basement.

Discard Snow Shovel

Youngsters always look forward to winter, sledding, snowball fights and other fun. The picture for adults, is the back-breaking job of keeping sidewalks and driveways clear.

Emancipation is available, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out. You can have an automatic snow-melting system installed. It's one of the special benefits of hydronic heat.

With hydronic heat, water from a boiler is piped to radiation in the various rooms, most often baseboard. In a snow-melting system, pipe to radiation in the various rooms, most often baseboard. In a snow-melting system, pipe is embedded in the sidewalks and driveway, and a mixture of hot water and anti-freeze is pumped through it.

The system can be operated either manually or automatically. Snow melts as fast as it strikes the heated surface.

Installing a snow-melting system requires the technical knowledge of a qualified heating contractor.

Swindle Victims Usually Women

The 'Little Picture' Hooking Many People in Spain

By WILLIAM B. LYON

MADRID (UPI)—Mrs. Luisa P—pounded her kitchen table and cried over and over again, "how could I have been so stupid?"

The woman, mother of three, had just given away 23,000 pesetas ($328) of hard-saved money to two confidence tricksters, thinking they would make her rich.

She was a victim of a swindle known as the estampita, or "little picture," which has hooked an amazing number of people in Spain.

Hardly a week goes by without someone in Madrid falling for it, even though the newspapers continue full of warnings and publishing descriptions of the con men involved each time.

That people keep falling for this and other swindles does, of course, involve a degree of stupidity. But greed is the greater villain.

Every time the story is the same: The victim, usually a woman, is approached in the street by a young man who appears to be mentally retarded and asks her the way to an orphanage or hospital.

As soon as she answers, the boy takes out a torn 1,000 peseta (14.28) note and asks if it is worth anything because he has been told it is worthless. He says the package he is carrying is full of these "little pictures" and he does not know what to do with them.

At this point his partner, acting the part of a well-dressed onlooker, steps in. He draws the woman aside and tells her confidentially the poor boy is obviously ignorant of what he has in the package and the two of them can make a little money without hurting anyone.

He advises her to go to her home or bank and gather all the money she has.

"We will give it to the lad and take his package, which obviously contains much more money," the man whispers.

When she returns with the money, they make the exchange. Then the man says he will accompany the boy to a bus stop to go to the orphanage and she must wait just a moment until he comes back and they can split up the money. But he never comes back.

The woman is left holding a package containing nothing but torn up newspapers.

This con trick is not the only one currently being pulled in Spain. Another is the lottery ticket game.

The victim is approached by someone who displays what is apparently a winning ticket in the last national lottery. He says he has to get back to his village immediately because a relative is dying, and the only thing of value on him is this ticket, which he cannot cash until Monday because today is Saturday. Meanwhile his poor grandfather, mother, brother,

may be dead.

He offers the ticket at half its value. He shows the official list of winning numbers to prove the ticket is valid. The victim gives him the money but, on going to cash in the ticket, finds it is false.

Another popular ruse is to lead the victim, usually an elderly person, into believing he is being reunited with a long lost relative.

The confidence man first finds out the name and home town of his prey, then approaches him in the street, effusively greeting him, "Don Antonio, Don Antonio, how are you? Don't you remember me?"

It's me, Pepe, from Valencia, your nephew!" Don Antonio stops, thinking aloud, "Maria's boy?" The astute Pepe replies, "Yes,

Uncle. Maria's boy. How are you after all these years? And Aunt Carolina?"

They go to Don Antonio's house, where Pepe immediately recognizes his "aunt." After a drink, he tells them how a man he has met has just offered to sell him some valuable linen at a ridiculously low price. He produces a sample and explains

how he cannot buy it because he is broke, but could his aunt and uncle possibly lend him the cash until he can re-sell the linen, or better yet, would they like to split the enormous profit.

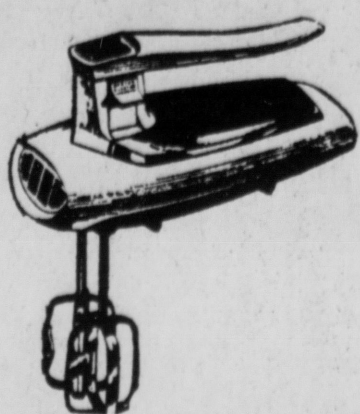

So the couple give their "nephew" all their money, he steps out to close the deal, and they never see him—or their life savings again.

Chou's Version In Doubt

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

Chou En-Lai, premier and currently No. 3 man in Red China, chose the regime's 19th birthday to announce that everything on the mainland is just dandy and that complete victory for Mao Tse-Tung's cultural revolution "is not far away."

This bright picture does not square with anything else coming out of Red China.

Reliable reports, many of them taken from official Peking announcements, indicate a steady deterioration in fields ranging from nuclear energy to education and agriculture.

"Current Scene", a fortnightly periodical published by the U. S. Consulate General in Hong Kong and devoted to an assessment of developments in mainland China, declared "the continuing struggle in China no longer centers around policies, but power."

Local Warlords

It saw power at the center breaking down and being taken over by local warlords in the 26 provinces and three special municipalities, and said that even the military, which has given Mao his muscle, had "caught the infection of factionalism."

Both Chou and Defense Minister Lin Biao, Mao's heir apparent, accused the Soviet Union and the United States of plotting to divide the world, indicating again the all-pervading suspicion which has alienated China even from those who would like to be her friend.

Here are some other conclusions reached by China experts:

Education: All schools were closed down in late 1966. Most, with the exception of primary schools, remain closed. Millions of former students never will complete their education and have been assigned to a lifetime of manual labor in factories, mines and the countryside.

Formal education has been cut from 12 to nine years. Soldier-worker teams assigned to take over schools are meeting opposition from down-graded Red Guards and there has been violence. The Red Guards formerly were the spearheads of Mao's cultural revolution.

Drought and Floods

Agriculture: A good crop year in 1967 enabled Red China to produce 190 million tons of grain, despite disruption brought about by the power struggle. To other difficulties this year have been added drought in the northern provinces and floods in the south. Analysts say China cannot possibly equal last year's output in 1968.

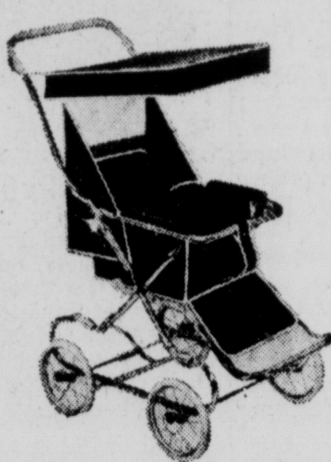

Industry: Availability of coal, China's chief source of energy, is believed to be 20 to 25 per cent below normal. Strikes, armed clashes and slowdowns at rail centers are believed to have reduced rail tonnages by a similar amount. Factories are idle, and the Chinese have refused commitments on many export items. Imports have increased, and exports declined.

Nuclear development: It has been well over a year since the Chinese conducted a successful explosion in their nuclear weapons tests. Nuclear scientists have come under attack by the Red Guards and as result, according to scientific observers, the nuclear program definitely has been slowed.

Quality grades most common to apples are U.S. Extra Fancy, U.S. Fancy, U.S. No. 1, and U.S. Utility. These are based on the apple, maturity, cleanliness, degree of color, regularity of shape and freedom from blemishes when packed. Grading is not required for apples to be purchased directly from the grower. Store apples in a cool place like the refrigerator and use within two weeks. Nutritionally, one medium apple contributes 70 calories and 6 per cent of the minimum daily requirements of thiamine for a normally active woman, says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist.

Cheese can be a luxury or an economically priced food. To save money on cheese, remember that:

Cheese made in the United States costs less than imported. Mild Cheddar cheese costs less than sharp or aged Cheddar.

Block or wedges of cheese costs less than cubed or grated cheese.

Store-wrapped cheese generally costs less than prepackaged brands of the same grade and quality.

You can find cottage cheese in large sized, small size and variations with chives, mixtures of vegetables and fruits. Most of the cottage cheese available in the markets today is creamed cottage cheese and the label bears the name "creamed."

Potatoes—The early summer potato crop and the late summer harvest are now overlapping and will continue to do so for the next few weeks. Prices for potatoes will be declining during this period and this situation should be good news for food buyers.

A suggested test for food buyers wishing to know which variety of potatoes to purchase for baking, french fries or for boiling and mashing, is as follows: one pound table salt added to 1 gallon of water. If the potatoes float—they are good for boiling or mashing. If the potatoes sink—they are good for baking or french fries.

Storage conditions can affect cooking quality. A few days exposure to light will cause the potato's surface to turn green. This discoloration may cause a slightly bitter flavor. Long storage below 40 degrees F. turns potato starch to sugars, causing a sweet taste when cooked.

For best storage, place potatoes in a cool (45 to 50 F.) dark place. It is best to place large quantities of potatoes on a cart rather than directly on the floor. This aids in ventilation and also helps to move large quantities to the place of use. Check large quantities frequently as one spoiled potato can decay the others.

Boston baked beans, chili con carne, bean soup and scores of other bean dishes can be made from dry beans. In addition they are high in protein content and in iron (a cupful contains half of a day's iron needs) and provides Vitamins B and calcium.

There are several different types of dry beans on the market. Red kidney beans are long and oval shaped. Their color ranges from pinkish to reddish brown, to deep dark brown. They are good for salads, soups and baking. Pea or Navy beans are small and oval and range in color from white to cream. They hold their shape when cooked and are used most frequently for soups. Great Northern beans, are larger than pea beans and are somewhat flat shaped and are used chiefly for baked bean dishes. They, too, are white to cream colored. Pinto beans are buff-colored and speckled with brown. They are preferred for chili in the Southwest but are also popular for salads. Lima beans are large or baby, flat, broad and white. They are great in vegetable dishes and casseroles.

Donation Day Tea Planned at Home for Aged

HOME FOR AGED

(Hoderath photo)

One of the area's popular annual events, the traditional donation and tea at the Home for the Aged, 80 Washington Avenue, Kingston, will be held on Thursday, Oct. 24, from 1 to 4 p. m. The tea and sale is the only fund raising project sponsored by members of the Board and the ladies at the home.

Proceeds from the sales are added to the good cheer fund which provides monies to make the home more comfortable for the residents.

Through the years the citizens of Ulster County have co-operated by making financial contributions, by donating foods and saleable items or by attending the tea and purchasing articles.

Unusual Christmas decorations, created by the residents under the guidance of Mrs. George Matthews, manager, will be displayed as well as a miscellaneous surprise booth for the adventuresome.

Because of the public's response last year, improvements were able to be made at the entrance to the home where overgrown and dead shrubbery have been replaced. A new sewing machine has been purchased, an old television set was replaced and several rooms have been decorated.

Mrs. Burton S. Davis, chairman of donation day and publicity, has announced the following committees: Mrs. John Gill, chairman of food table, assisted by Mrs. S. B. Schwarz-waelder, Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Mrs. John Haulenbeck, Mrs. Herbert DeKay and Mrs. James Matthews, co-chairman, plant table; Mrs. Arthur Oudemool, chairman, domestic table, Mrs. Burton Davis, Mrs. Allan Dumas and Mrs. William Ry-lance; Mrs. Fred Scott, chair-man, thrift table, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, Mrs. John McKinnon, Mrs. John Schomer, Mrs. James Shelhorse.

Also Mrs. Howard St. John, chairman, tea table, Mrs. Al-fred Schmid, Mrs. Roy Sutcliffe, Mrs. Frank Johnston, Mrs. George Riftenbary, Mrs. Louis Smith, Mrs. George Schneider is in charge of good cheer and Mrs. William Carvel will serve as treasurer. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Clifford Henze.

Retired Teachers Have Convention

Mrs. Edna Parsons of Goshen was a delegate to the 18th annual convention of the New York State Retired Teachers Association held from Sep-tember 29 thru October 1 at Grossinger's.

700 retired teachers from all areas of the state were in attendance at this event which culminated in a banquet at which Dr. J. Albert Holbritter, Deputy Executive Secretary of the New York State Teachers Retirement Board, spoke on the retirement allowances and the Supplemental Pension Law passed at the recent session of the New York State Legislature.

State officers elected at this meeting were:

Raymond J. Ast, 15 Parkwood Drive, Snyder, president; Lyle Roberts, 14 Eagle Street, National level.

Cooperstown, first vice president: Mrs. Emily T. Barhydt, 235 Glenwood Avenue, Syracuse, second vice president: Ferdinand E. Kamprath, 241 Dartmouth Avenue, Buffalo, third vice president: Benjamin Lepson, 2115 Highland Avenue, Rochester, treasurer: Miss Ora Searle, 1904 Oneida Street, Utica, secretary.

A surprise feature of the annual banquet was a visit by the charming Mrs. Jenni Retirement Board, founder of the retirement allowances and the Supplemental Pension Law passed at the recent session of the New York State Legislature.

The Association adopted resolutions pledging continued efforts toward improved retirement benefits for its members both on a State and National level.

Crime, Delinquency Symposium Held Here

A total of 64 persons registered for the symposium on crime and delinquency at the YWCA on Wednesday, Sept. 25, at which time a plea to listen to what the new generation was trying to say was heard repeatedly from a youth panel and an adult panel experienced in crime and delinquency problems. Another plea for citizen understanding and support for a more efficient and economical criminal justice system was heard by the evening audience who was addressed by Richard J. Bartlett, chairman of the New York State Crime Control Council.

Speaking for youth were Miss Elizabeth Waters, junior high school student; Miss Rosie del-Rio, Miss Bambi Jensen and Sidney Lemon, senior high school students; and Thomas Phillips, college student. Moderator was Lawrence Siewers.

Only 10 per cent of teenagers are trouble makers; 90 per cent want an acceptable role in society. The participants pinpointed specific areas where adults could help, but often fail. Teenagers want an acceptable channel for ideas and energy; they can contribute to community projects and programs; they do not want someone to plan for them, but they need resources with which to work.

Teenagers want their parents to care, but acceptable evidence of caring has to confine itself to a narrow area between being too strict and too permissive. For some young people, vandalism is one way of getting attention, of reminding parents they are "there."

At the afternoon session emphasis was placed on working "with" and not "for" teenagers. Speakers for this session were Dr. Stanley Leyden of Community Action committee; Charles Schultz, Ulster County Probation Department; Deputy Superintendent Robert J. Henderson of Catskill Reformatory at Napanoch; and Captain Theodore Schubin from Wallkill State Prison. Robert Kurland, moderator of the panel, who is a member of the faculty of the Social Science Department at Ulster County Community College, opened the afternoon session and reminded listeners that delinquency is related to environment and the cultural interpretation of how we deal with ourselves.

Mentioned as factors contributing to delinquency problems and blocking solution were the breakdown of family units both in affluent and impoverished segments of society; women out of the home in either employment or volunteer organizational work; lack of reasonable discipline and the multiplicity of agencies and organizations working toward common goals, independently, without coordinated planning.

Mr. Bartlett, speaking at the final session, outlined the work of the State Crime Control Council which is responsible for developing a state-wide plan for improving the criminal justice system and advising on the use of Federal funds available to states under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act recently passed by Congress.

Centralized services such as record keeping, laboratory work, investigative offices may reduce expenses and be more efficient than present setups. Pooling of certain offices by several small counties joining together may be another practical approach.

Besides members of the Public Affairs committee, YWCA volunteers who helped make the all day program a success were Miss Dora Nichols, Miss Marie Masterson, Miss Sandy Thomon, Miss Loretta Walker and members of the Young Homemakers Club, the Women's Club, the Business and Professional Women's Club and Tri-Hi.

AAUW Area Conference Held at Minnewaska

Thirteen members of the society, Mrs. William Grindel of Kingston branch of the Poughkeepsie gave an example of AAUW in action with her report of the successful efforts of AAUW Mid-Hudson Area Conference at Lake Minnewaska, Saturday, Sept. 28.

The Board's main purpose is to coordinate the work of the various agencies working with youth throughout the county.

Mrs. John C. Tongren, Middle Atlantic Region vice-president of AAUW, gave the opening address. Mrs. James McGraw, president of the New York State Division, and the members of the New York State Division Board were present. AAUW branches from Poughkeepsie, New Paltz, Liberty-Monticello, Albany and Troy, as well as Kingston, were represented.

Members attending from Kingston were: Mrs. Harry Matzen, president; Miss Veronica Chmura, first vice-president; Mrs. Paul H. Johnson, second vice-president; Mrs. Edna Vickers, secretary; Mrs. James Williams, treasurer; Mrs. Kirtland Snyder, area conference representative; also Mrs. Fred Port, Mrs. Daniel Van Wagenen, Mrs. Herbert Bloom, Mrs. William A. Paetow, Mrs. Kenneth M. Gelhaus, Mrs. Ida Sherman, and Miss Alice Kinkade. Others from the Kingston area at the conference were Mrs. Beatrice Gardner and Miss Evelyn Stone.

LACK OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENT IRKS SENDER OF GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Post: What do you do when you send someone a gift and never get an acknowledgment or a thank you? I used to overlook it, but the last time I questioned the person after waiting six weeks and was answered, "Yes, I received it." The thought that runs through my mind now is to forget about sending the person another gift if they can acknowledge it without my asking them. Am I wrong?—Betty M.

Dear Betty: No, you're not wrong. Being forced to inquire whether a gift arrived is embarrassing enough, to get such an unappreciative answer is unbelievable. Don't send that person another gift—ever—she certainly doesn't deserve it.

Introduced a Step-Grandmother

all our friends feel they should say "step-grandmother." It would sound nicer and show some respect. The step-grandchildren are all finished with high school. I am not up on all etiquette so I would appreciate your advice.—Curious

Dear "Curious": You may not be up on all etiquette, but you're right in this. There is no excuse—when there is a two-generation gap—for a young person to introduce an older woman by her first name. Your husband and friends are right. Since he does agree with you, your husband is the one who should insist that you be referred to as "step-grandmother." If the young people wish to add a name, they should say "My step-grandmother, Mrs. Jones."

Bride's Family Pays Reception Expenses

Dear Mrs. Post: In planning my wedding I ran across quite a problem—no cooperation, disagreements on both sides, with me in the middle. Our biggest problem is who pays for the liquor. It states in the etiquette book that unless the bride is exceptionally wealthy, it is a "courtesy," not a rule, for the parents of the groom to pay for the liquor. Personally, I've always seen the groom's family pay for it. Help!—Cynthia

Dear Cynthia: Everyone seems to read a different etiquette book! I don't think my

$71.9 Billion Voted For Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The appropriations bill in U.S. Senate, beating back all at history, has voted to give the Pentagon $71.9 billion to run the Vietnam War and provide for the nation's defense over the coming year.

The measure, containing funds for deployment of a controversial and limited anti-ballistic missile system to protect against nuclear attack from Communist China, must now be reconciled in conference with a slightly larger $72.2 billion bill passed by the House.

The Senate approved the measure by a vote of 55 to 2—only Democratic Sen. Ernest Gruening of Alaska and Stephen Young of Ohio were opposed—after overwhelmingly rejecting a series of cutting amendments proposed by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa.

Final debate on the bill bogged down in partisan arguments over Vietnam, with Republicans charging that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's qualified pledge to halt U.S. bombing in North Vietnam would lead to more American deaths in the war.

As big as it is, the appropriations bill does not fully reflect the cost of supporting the nation's military establishment for the 12 months ending next June 30.

Continuation of the war will force the administration to request a supplemental appropriations bill of several billion dollars as it has in the past. Moreover, base construction expenditures are covered in an entirely separate appropriations bill.

Buckley Sees Tough Gun Law

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI)—The supposedly toothless gun control law will have plenty of bite when it is enforced, Conservative party senatorial candidate James L. Buckley predicted Thursday.

Buckley, brother of conservative publisher and columnist William Buckley, made the comment in an interview on radio station WIRD.

"We are told that most of the teeth in the law as originally proposed have been taken out," Buckley said. "But if experience has taught us anything it is that once the federal government sticks its bureaucratic nose into a new field it will in good time take it over."

"All those teeth and more will find their way back into the law until the federal government has assumed effective control over the right of the citizen to own arms."

He said the clamor for gun control is simply a result of the assassinations of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King and that gun control legislation would not have prevented them.

Buckley called for mandatory stiff jail sentences for "anyone found in possession of firearms while engaged in a crime or while involved in a riot or organized protest."

Wallace's Running Mate

LeMay: Hawk's Hawk

When it comes to wars, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, retired air force chief of staff, has only one philosophy.

Win.

A hard-line military man, with a record of accomplishments to match, LeMay is a hawk's hawk.

In 1945, LeMay talked of World War II. "If the Japs don't give up, we will sock them so hard it will take a hundred years to recover." He commanded the atomic bomb drops over Japan.

Last June, the Columbus, Ohio, native advocated a militant strategy in Vietnam.

"We should use a" the strength we have," he said. "We should hit all the important targets in Vietnam. We should close the ports, then hit the targets regardless of where they are."

"Make the war so costly for the Communists that they will end it," is the philosophy of the father of the Strategic Air Command.

A graduate of Ohio State University, the green-eyed, gray-haired LeMay, 61, today entered another battle—the third party presidential campaign of George C. Wallace. He became Wallace's hand-picked vice presidential candidate.

The pilot of B29 fame, who enjoys cigars, retired from the Air Force in 1965. He now lives in Belair, a suburb of Los Angeles.

LeMay's mother died last fall in Mount Vernon, Ohio, at the age of 80.

LeMay met his wife, the former Helen Maitland, at the University of Michigan in 1931 on a blind date.

He was a lieutenant in the regular Army with his new pilot's wings still shining.

Offered Senate Job

In 1945, LeMay was offered the job of U.S. senator from Ohio by then Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche. He declined.

LeMay's retirement from the military didn't take him away from airplanes. He joined Executive Jet Aviation Inc. in Columbus, Ohio, as assistant chairman of the board and a director.

His appointment to the jet charter service which caters to private industry came after President Johnson pinned the Distinguished Service Medal on him and wished the tough-talking pilot "God speed and happy landings."

The father of three children, two of whom died in infancy, LeMay has not changed his basic philosophy since he was commissioned a lieutenant.

When supporters suggested compromise presidential candidate, LeMay noted he would be available for a sincere draft.

"Certainly I am not a serious candidate at the present time," he said. "But when I retired and hung up my Air Force uniform, I did not forget my country."

LeMay said his decision to become Wallace's running mate was one of the "hardest decisions of my life."

Two Month Study

He said he "studied the situation for two months" before deciding to join Wallace.

"I don't have to do this," LeMay said. "I prefer not to—but I feel this is one more task I have to do for my country."

LeMay said he had "always been a Republican."

"I call myself a moderate Republican that might be a little on the right side," he said. "But he said none of the current Republican leaders 'have come out with statements to convince me that they will straighten things out. This bothers me.'

"It appears to me that in the last couple of decades our country has deteriorated very much."

LeMay said he was worried about the country's financial condition and growing crime rate.

New York School Board Offers Peace Proposal

NEW YORK (AP)—Another peace proposal for the Ocean Hill-Brownsville school district was offered Thursday night by the Board of Education—to give the community governing board more power and make it virtually autonomous. But the teachers union frowned upon the idea.

A dispute over teacher placement in the experimental Brooklyn district, where community control of schools is being tested, led to a citywide teachers' walkout for three weeks. It kept 1.1 million pupils from their classrooms at the start of the fall term.

Classes resumed last Monday in the city's 900 public schools. But violence ensued in Ocean Hill-Brownsville, a predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican district, over the return of 80 reinstated white teachers who had been fired by the local governing board.

The reinstatement was part of the settlement package under which teachers went back to work.

All was calm in the district Thursday as classes resumed citywide after a one-day Jewish holiday.

All parties to the dispute met Thursday night at the Commodore Hotel to hear the newest peace plan. There were reports that involved having the troubled district removed from the jurisdiction of the city Board of Education and affiliating it with a university.

Among those attending the meeting were four faculty members from the Harvard Graduate School of Education. The Rev. Milton A. Galamison, a Negro member of the central board, said the four-point autonomy plan would institute "a scientifically valid experiment in community control to determine the effect on the education of the children."

The Board of Education said in a statement, "The present limited powers of the Ocean Hill-Brownsville governing board have precluded any such determination. The powers normally exercised . . . by local school districts are to be conferred upon the local governing board."

But Albert Shanker, president of the strike-stilled United Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, said "No school board has this power and there is no reason for Ocean Hill-Brownsville to be given this power. If such power were given, it would be a step backwards."

Harassment Charge

Highland State Police arrested Angelo Rae, 38, of Palenville, on Thursday on a charge of harassment. The incident occurred in Wallkill, it was reported. Shawangunk Justice M. J. Oscar Smith set bail at $500. Rae pleaded innocent and the case was referred to Family Court, according to troopers.

Detroit Power Erupts

Series Even; Too Many Tigers in Cards' Tank

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Mickey Lolich, shrugging off a groin infection that was supposed to weaken him, left the St. Louis Cardinals dazed with a strong six-hitter and his first major league homer Thursday as the Detroit Tigers bombed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-1 to even the World Series at a game apiece. Lolich, who developed the infection overnight and was told by the doctor that it might prevent him from going all the way, was powerful at the finish as he allowed only two hits in the final three innings. Striking out nine batters in addition to clouting his 330-foot homer in the third inning, Lolich picked the Tigers off the floor where they had been left in their opening game trouncing by the Cards' Bob Gibson. After a day off Friday, the tied-up Series now goes to Detroit for the third, fourth, and fifth games, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday. 1st add night Lead Series St. Louis 085s xxx Monday.

Lolich, who became a left-handed pitcher as the result of a childhood accident on a bicycle, admitted that his triumph left him "so exhausted I'm ready to fall asleep on the trainer's table." But the Cards were left even more stunned as the explosive Tigers flashed the kind of hitting prowess that terrorized the American League. All told, the Tigers had 13 hits, including three homers off starter and loser Nelson Briles.

Towering homers by Willie Horton, who had 36 during the regular season, in the second, and by Norm Cash, who had 25, in the sixth inning dismayed the capacity crowd of 54,692 at Busch Memorial Stadium. But they were really stunned when Lolich, a right-handed .114 hitter this season even though he's a southpaw pitcher, collected two hits—including the first homer in six seasons with the Tigers in the third inning. He also walked—of all things—with the bases loaded in the ninth to force in a run, giving him two runs batted in.

Lolich, who broke into a big grin when he headed for the Tiger dugout after the homer, trotted slowly around the bases—but had to go back and touch first after missing it the first time. When the Series resumes Saturday in Tiger Stadium in Detroit, Earl Wilson will start centerfielders in the business, for the Tigers against Ray Washburn. On Sunday, in the fourth game, the Bob Gibson-Denny McLain "duel" will be repeated.

Lolich, who grew accustomed to cool weather in his home town of Portland, Ore., was the happiest man in St. Louis, knocked out Carlton at the start of the seventh and Ron Willis year. He then came back to win 10 of his last 12, including his final four decisions, for a 17-9 hit, Cepeda, who was 0-for-6 in this series and 6-for-54 in Series competition, dropped his pop-fly, run-scoring single. But the final two Tiger runs came off Joe Hoerner in the eighth and ninth hitters, Don Werth and Lolich, to force in two runs before McAuliffe fled out to end the rally.

Noted as a late-season pitcher, Lolich won nine of his last 10 starts in 1967 but was demoted to the bullpen with a 7 record in mid-season this year. After Julian Javier struck out and Flood beat out an infield hit, Cepeda, who was 0-for-6 in this series and 6-for-54 in Series competition, dropped his pop-fly, run-scoring single. But the final two Tiger runs came off Joe Hoerner in the eighth and ninth hitters, Don Werth and Lolich, to force in two runs before McAuliffe fled out to end the rally.

Tigers No Pussycats; Series Not So Simple

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Executive Sports Editor
ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers proved they're no pussycats, and suddenly the 1968 World Series isn't as simple as Bob Gibson made it look.

Tigers mauled 19-game winner Nelson Briles, and an assortment of successors who were a "relief" only to Detroit fans sick of Gibson, raises the question whether the Cards have any pitcher except Gibson who can do the job.

Lolich and Horton were the guys who turned things around. Mostly, of course, Lolich. The Detroit southpaw came up with the greatest day of his career just when it seemed he was doomed to disappointment. On the eve of the game, he developed a groin infection that sapped his strength. Detroit manager Mayo Smith decided to start him anyway, but was ready to relieve him after about five innings.

"The doctor told me I'd get very tired in the late innings," Lolich disclosed. So "tired" was Lolich that he merely: 1. pitched a six-hitter that could have been a shutout. 2. slugged the very first home run of his major league career; 3. Also had a single; 4. Walked with the bases loaded to drive in another run.

"I heard the crowd roar as I got to first base," he admitted, "and I was surprised and I forgot to touch the base. I had to go back and touch it." The "great slugger" explained his feat thus: "It was a fast ball on the inside of the plate, not even a strike, and I just tried to tomahawk it to keep it away."

"I'm so tired now, though," he said after the game, "that I could lie right down on the trainer's table and go right off to sleep." Horton socked the first of the three Detroit homers. And if the day comes—sometime next week—when the Tigers win the last game of the Series, they will point to the moment when Horton teed off on Briles as the turning point. Until that instant, the Tigers had been mighty tame tabbies. After nine innings of humiliation by Gibson, the first four Tiger batters had gone out quietly for Briles.

Then Briles served his first pitch to Horton—and the outfielder built like a fullback slugged it 20 rows deep into the left-centerfield stands, well behind the 386-foot sign. Right then and there, the Tigers began to believe in themselves again. "The reaction on the bench was great," Manager Smith said. "The homer brought us alive."

When Bullet Bob was blowing down the Tigers with 17 strikeouts in the opening game of the Series, the Tigers were a jittery, fumbling bunch who didn't seem to belong in the same ballpark with the defending world champions.

But two guys—Mickey Lolich and Willie Horton—changed all that in a hurry Thursday as Detroit stomped the Cards, 8-1, and tied the Series at one game each.

Now, as the Series catches its breath for one day and then shifts to Tiger Stadium in Detroit for the third, fourth, and fifth games Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, it's obvious the Cardinals have a couple of major problems in their fight to retain their world title.

For one thing, there's that Detroit power—which emerged from the Gibson-caused coma to account for three homers among 13 hits Thursday. Back home in Tiger Stadium, where the left-center and right-center "power alleys" are shorter, the belting Bengals will be tougher to handle.

For another, the way the Cardinals have handled the Series. In the regular season, but they the St. Louis Cardinals and Earl Wilson of the Detroit Tigers were named Thursday as the starting pitchers for the third game of the World Series at Detroit Saturday.

Both Wilson and Washburn got off to relatively poor starts league record. Washburn hurled a no hitter against San Francisco the day after Giant pitcher Gaylord Perry threw one against the Cards to help establish a major

Mickey L. Comes Back And No Birds Sing

By ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers qualifies twice for a "come-back" award. First, it took a late season comeback for him to become a starting World Series pitcher. Second, he ignored an infection that made him "roggy" to become the Tigers' first Series winner against the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I almost didn't pitch," Lolich said. "Wednesday night I got an infection in the groin and it took a lot out of me. I was weak. I expected to go five or six innings and then somebody would come in and take over for me."

"Warming up I was quite groggy, and after the game I was real tired. Exhausted really. I sort of ran out of gas." What with the infection and Lolich's 1968 season, Tiger manager Mayo Smith might have been justified in switching his pitching rotation. But he didn't.

"It was Mickey all the way," he said. "The doctor told me if he felt all right, I could start him, although it was possible he'd get tired in the later innings." Before he got tired, his Tiger teammates had helped supply such a wide margin so that an exhausted pitcher could finish. "I don't think Mickey is quite as sharp as he was a year ago," Smith said. "But I'd have to say he's made a remarkable recovery. In mid-season he was pitching lousy, so I put him in the bullpen and he came around."

His improvement obviously came with the bat as well as the mound. While he struck out nine, walked two and allowed six singles, he also got the first home run of his professional baseball career. "I knew I hit the ball good," he said, "but I didn't know how high I hit it. I didn't even know where it went. Then I saw the left fielder keep backing up and finally he couldn't go back any farther, and the roar of the crowd told me it was in." "I missed first base and had to go back and touch it," Lolich, unlike most pitchers, chose to dwell on his pitching and not his hitting after the game. He has had only four previous extra base hits in the major leagues, three doubles and one triple, and doesn't regard himself as a hitter. But pitching? "Generally I have a good fast ball," he said, "Thursday my best pitch was the slider. It was working real effectively and I got a lot of guys out with it."

Pros and Cons at State Hearing On Death Penalty Reinstatement

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pro and con factions were closely divided Thursday during hearings before a State Senate committee on whether or not to reinstate the death penalty for murder.

Of the 36 persons who spoke during the six and a half hour hearing, 16 called for reinstatement of the death penalty and 15 asked that the law remain unchanged. Five others spoke on other aspects of the penal code.

The death penalty was abolished in New York State in 1965, except for criminals who murder policemen during the commission of a felony or convicted murderers who slay prison guards.

Sen. Edward J. Speno, chairman of the committee, said he was surprised at the opposition to the present ban on the death penalty.

"I would not discount the strong possibility of the reinstatement of the death penalty in felony murder situations," he said.

The Nassau County Republican, who voted for abolition of the penalty three years ago said "some legislators are taking a second look."

"I have an open mind and have not been convinced that capital punishment is a deterrent to murder," Speno said. "But if we find it does deter we will have to re-evaluate our position."

The first witness was Mario A. Procaccino, city controller, who not only urged repeal of the limited death penalty law but called for mandatory long terms for felony repeaters and holding parents responsible for vandalism committed by their children.

Rockefeller
Backs Fish
For Congress

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, in Poughkeepsie yesterday afternoon gave Republican Congressional candidate Hamilton Fish Jr. a big boost in his campaign when he spoke of Fish's "background, knowledge, experience and maturity."

Saying "There is a Republican tide running in the country," Rockefeller called for the election of Fish to Congress.

Speaking at a huge Rotary luncheon, the governor said, "If Dick Nixon is to have the support he needs, we need Ham Fish in Washington. I urge every voter of the 28th District to send Fish to Congress."

Approved by the Clerk of the County Court of Ulster County, New York, on the 14th day of June, 1968.

FRANCINE'S RIVALS — Secretary Suzanne Zulkowski (L), 21, and model Shellie Moore, 25, both of Cleveland, Ohio, are the center of attention as they descend steps in New York. The buxom blondes are said to possess measurements equal to those of Wall Street's Francine Gottfried, whose every appearance threw the financial district into an uproar last month. Miss Gottfried's measurements are 43-25-37. Miss Zulkowski and Miss Moore possess an impressive 43-24-37. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

O'Dwyer Backers
Hold Meeting

An organizational meeting of the Ulster County Citizens for O'Dwyer Committee was held this week at the home of Mrs. Bruce Klein, in Kingston, for the purpose of promoting the candidacy of Paul O'Dwyer for United States Senator.

Julius Sippen, co-chairman of the Ulster County organization, stated that representatives of many towns and cities in Ulster County were present.

The co-chairman also noted that Tuesday night's meeting was particularly productive in preparing plans and organizing committees for a registration drive in the Kingston area, a theater party in Woodstock and various fund-raising and promotional activities including coffee hours and dinner parties.

The theater party for O'Dwyer will be held at the Tinker Street Theatre in Woodstock. The committee plans to present a viewing of the film "The Incident," starring Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee at 7 p.m. and at 9 p.m. on the evening of Oct. 22. Area residents interested should contact Mrs. Jane Taylor in Kingston.

The next meeting will be held at 20 Dummum Avenue, Kingston, at 8 p.m. on Oct. 8 and is open to all interested area residents.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, We have this 27th day of August, 1968, made and signed this certificate.

s/ Frances M. Turk
s/ John I. Reynolds, Woodstock, New York.

Dear Abby

Over 65- 'Socially Secure'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 70-years-old, in exceptionally good health and for six years have kept company with a lady now 65. We ride and dine together frequently and enjoy one another's company. It is unlikely that we will ever marry as we occupy homes owned and lived in by three generations of our families.

Some years ago I inherited a small winter home in Florida and I've invited my friend to drive down with me for the winter. She has always declined but recently she said "Ask Abby, and if she thinks it's all right, perhaps I shall agree."

DEAR LONELY: You may tell her that Abby said that when a lady reaches the age of social security, she is "socially secure" so to go ahead and have fun in the sun."

DEAR ABBY: I love Sheldon very much and want to marry him, but here's my problem. He has a very domineering mother. She divorced Sheldon's father when Sheldon was a baby and she never remarried. He was her only child. She raised him alone and now she acts like a martyr.

I am 25 and Sheldon is 30. He's handsome, gentle, and well educated—everything a woman would want in a husband, but "mama" has to know where he is every minute.

She has her own apartment (thank God) but she drains her son for every bit of attention she can get. (If she has a cold, it's "pneumonia." Indigestion is a "slight heart attack.") My friends say they wouldn't wish a mother-in-law like her on their worst enemy. I've seen very little of her, but Sheldon says she "likes" me.

How important is a man's mother? She is only 57, "c" I can count on "mama" being in the picture for a long time yet.

DEAR GIRL: How "important" a man's mother is depends entirely on the man. How does Sheldon react to his mother's possessiveness? Don't listen to "friends." Get to know "mama" better and decide for yourself whether the cord is cut or not. Then act accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: I just read that letter from the fellow who finally told his wife that he never cared for raspberry pie after she'd been serving it to him for 28 years.

It sure took him a long time to get enough trust to raise a little hull. Why didn't he tell her the first time she served it to him that her dessert was a crummy failure?

Well, to get to the core of the problem, I didn't like warm applesauce either, so I can sure sympathize with the guy who got the raspberries for 28 years.

The best player doesn't always make the most tricks. He will over a period of years but on some hands he deliberately adopts a safer line of play to insure his contract.

Take today's hand played by Ralph Chafetz at New York's Maysair Club. Ralph was in a four-spade contract and, while he had no objection to making an overtrick, his main purpose was to make sure of his contract.

He could count 10 winners without any trouble but his problem was to see that East and West couldn't collect four tricks before he got them.

All else being equal, the right way to play trumps when you miss four to the queen is to play out your ace and king but all else wasn't equal. Ralph wanted to keep East out of the lead because East could lead a club through Ralph's king.

Ralph had to lose a diamond trick in any event. One diamond loser, plus a spade loser, plus two club losers add up to four defensive tricks.

Ralph wasn't going to let that happen. He won the heart lead. Then he led a trump to dummy's ace and returned the jack. East played low and Ralph finessed. West took his queen and collected his minor suit aces later, but Ralph was perfectly happy. He scored game and rubber.

Suppose that East held the ace of diamonds and got in with that card to lead a club and set Ralph? Ralph had listened to the bidding. West had opened one heart on a jack-high suit. He needed both missing aces to have an opening bid!

Lima Troops, Students Clash

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Army troops turned water cannons and tear gas today on gangs of youths who smashed shop windows and stoned government buildings to protest the military overthrow of President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

The skirmishes between youths, mostly university students, and soldiers first broke out in the Plaza de Arma in front of the plush Hotel Gran Bolivar Thursday. The violence lasted into today.

Troops manning a water cannon broke up repeated demonstrations of youths shouting "Traitors!" in the plaza. Other confrontations occurred along La Colmena, the fashionable shopping street where tourists buy such Peruvian souvenirs as llama rugs and silver candlesticks.

La Colmena, whose Spanish name "beehive" reflects the normal hum of activity on its sidewalks, was a litter of smashed glass. Most shops were shuttered.

Despite the disorders only one death was reported, a student shot when troops fired into the air to break up a demonstration.

A military junta sent soldiers to the presidential palace before dawn Thursday, seized Belaunde and put him on a special Peruvian Airlines flight to exile in Buenos Aires.

On arrival in the Argentine capital Belaunde proclaimed himself still president of Peru and blamed "certain interests" seeking to block free elections in his country next year.

Both Argentina and Bolivia offered Belaunde political asylum.

The military had accused Belaunde's administration of selling Peru short in a deal with the International Oil Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and of delaying social and economic reforms.

Gen. Juan Velasco Alvarado, president of the junta, said it would soon name a revolutionary president.

Velasco said the junta would rule by decree indefinitely.

A Press Spanking for the Czech Bosses

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet leaders talked in the Kremlin with Czechoslovak Communist reformers and publicly spanked them in newspapers today.

Czechoslovak party First Secretary Alexander Dubcek came Thursday seeking an early end of the Soviet-bloc occupation of his nation.

The mood of Moscow indicated he was being told the occupation would continue in force until the Kremlin was satisfied its brand of communism was safe in the little neighboring nation.

From the Kremlin came an official word on the talks between Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik and Slovak party leader Gustav Husak and the Soviet top trio—party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny.

But, in the streets outside the Kremlin fortress walls, Soviet newspapers continued bawling against alien changes in Communist rule. Today Red Star, published by the Defense Ministry, took up the cry against the "new brand" of the Red faith.

"Politically this idea is called upon to try and support nationalist elements in countries that have embarked on the road of socialism and thereby undermine the unity of these countries, disorient the mass of the people and create a favorable situation for reaction which seeks to restore the bourgeois order," Red Star said.

Soviet, Polish, Hungarian, East German and Bulgarian forces invaded Czechoslovakia Aug. 21 to snuff out such Dubcek reforms as freedom of the press and allowing non-Communist bodies to re-enter politics. The Kremlin prefers its standard brand of communism.

Dubcek & Co. had come with some hope of success, according to party sources in Prague. They flew from home only after the Soviets failed in a gathering of 58 Communist parties in Budapest Monday to win approval of a world Red summit in November. The Soviets failed because many of their junior partners did not like what happened to Czechoslovakia.

But there was no sign today that what happened in Budapest was making this visit any easier for Dubcek.

HUAC Probers: Definite Proof on Chicago Reds

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House investigators now claim documented proof at least 21 Communists plotted demonstrations at the Democratic National Convention in August as part of a plan to overthrow the government.

Third Final Day

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., head of a special subcommittee of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, made the claim as the panel went into its third and final day of hearings on the incidents at Chicago.

Ichord said earlier testimony "identified 21 Communists who participated in the Chicago riots." No names were given, and Ichord conceded to newsmen later that some of the identifications might have come up during a closed session of the panel Thursday, when a "secret investigator" was reported to have been questioned. During a public hearing later in the day, panel member tried without avail to elicit admissions of Communist party membership from witnesses representing groups that took part in the Chicago demonstrations.

Robert Greenblat, coordinator for the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, walked from the hearing room in the middle of questioning.

Termed Irrelevant

The second so-called "hostile witness" called by the panel, Dr. Quentin Young, a practicing physician and a leader of the medical committee on human rights, said the question of whether he was a Communist was "irrelevant."

Robert L. Pierson, an investigator for the Illinois state attorney's office who infiltrated peace groups demonstrating in Chicago, concluded "The goals of the Youth International Party (Yippies), the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), the Mobilization Committee and the Black Panthers is the violent overthrow of the government of the United States."

Pierson quoted Jerry Rubin, a Yippie leader to whom Pierson was assigned as a personal bodyguard in his undercover role, as stating that "We'll kill all the candidates for president and cause a revolution in the country."

No Evidence to Show That Thresher, Scorpion Losses Were Because of Steel Plate Failures

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy acknowledges that for the past nine months it has been investigating inspection practices for steel used in U.S. submarines.

The review, the Navy disclosed Thursday night, was prompted by a letter from the head of a steel testing firm who "expressed concern" about the service's steel buying and inspecting procedures.

The Navy said a wide-ranging probe that involved building of submarines, steel producers and government agents showed:

— "There is no evidence that defective steel plates are being used in submarine construction."

— "There is also no indication that the loss of the USS Thresher (1963) and USS Scorpion (last May) were due to the failure of the steel plates used in the hull structure."

— "Submarine steel plates and fabricated structures are guaranteed safe through inspection procedures that are 'always carried out under government supervision.'"

— "Recent ultrasonic inspection of welds and plating in more than 40 submarines in service 'has not revealed any evidence of plates which do not meet safe submarine construction requirements.'"

— "There is no evidence that rejected plates were used in any submarine construction."

The comments followed reports this week by Washington columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson that the Navy had evidence as early as July 16, 1962, that steel producers had "knowingly delivered defective plates" for submarine construction.

The Navy, asked for comment, defended itself—and industry, to an extent.

But the Navy's page-long rebuttal did not directly address one practice questioned by the columnists: The policy of allowing steel producers to pass judgment on their own steel.

What the Navy called "an extensive and detailed review" was started last February after the Naval Ship Systems Command received a letter from Raymond G. Perelman, president of Penn Galvanizing Co. of Philadelphia, who was critical of inspection procedures.

Perelman's firm was hired by Electric Boat, biggest U.S. sub builder, to check ultrasonically the steel plates being turned out by the mills for submarine construction.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed but the columnists said Perelman, in subsequent meetings with Navy officials, said his company had documented 750 instances of defective plates since 1962.

Afterwards, the Navy reported holding "numerous meetings" with Penn Galvanizing officials along with representatives of submarine construction firms, steel producers, the Navy's Supervisors of Shipbuilding and the Defense Contract Administration's quality assurance offices.

Concurrently, the steel awaiting use in the shipyards and steel already put into submarine hulls was analyzed.

Considering all factors, the Navy concluded:

"The inspection procedures used to determine the required quality of HY80 steel (used in submarine hulls) are valid; and the steel used in submarine hulls is of a quality that will safely fulfill all operating conditions."

Six Killed In German Mine Explosion

LUENEN, Germany (AP) — An explosion in a Ruhr district coal mine killed six West German miners today and the Stumm Brothers Mining Co. said four men were injured and seven others are missing 2,600 feet underground.

The explosion at the mine in this Westphalian town near Dortmund was believed due to an accumulation of coal dust, but company spokesmen said they had not pinned down the exact cause.

Rescue parties brought up the six bodies and the four injured men.
